Washington Hints That Roosevelt's Backers Will Invite Ohioan

WASHINGTON, March 14 — A new third term ticket, with Senator Vic Donahey, of Ohio, cast as the running mate of President Roosevelt, was talked about in New Deal circles today.

A member of the White House "inner circle" is reported to have sounded out Donahey recently on his availability for the second place nomination if Mr. Roosevelt is drafted by the Democratic convention in July. Donahey is said to have withheld any commitment one way or the other.

When queried about this report, Donahey withheld comment.

The Roosevelt-Donahey ticket was suggested by some New Dealers after earlier efforts to promote Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, for the post failed to win his assent. Wheeler is said to have dismissed the "feeler" by declaring he did not believe the President would be a candidate for a third term and asserting his interviewer was speaking without presidential knowledge.

The Donahey rumor meanwhile indicates the New Deal's "inner circle" is confident of drafting Mr. Roosevelt. They have started out in the first Democratic preferential primary by lining up New Hampshire's eight convention votes for a third term. The New Hampshire Democrats will have to vote for Mr. Roosevelt, under local law, until he releases them.

Choice Not Surprise

Choice of Donahey as the President's running-mate, if there is a third term ticket, would not be surprising. The senator, a veteran liberal, has been on the warmest personal relations with the President. He comes from a pivotal state that has bobbed back and forth between the Republican and Democratic columns. He has proven many times that he is the most popular vote-getter among Ohio Democrats, having been elected governor three times and senator once. The last time he carried every congressional district in the state.

Donahey has always had strong followings among farmers and union workers. He always won many Republican voters to his standard. He will be 67 in July, but Vice President John N. Gar-

SCHOOL FIGHT IN HIGH COURT

Attorneys For Muhlenberg And County Board Argue Motion For Review

The legal battle over the proposed transfer of the Muhlenberg school district to the centralized school in Monroe Township, Pickaway County, reached the State Supreme Court today as counsel for both sides presented their arguments on whether the high tribunal should review the case. The supreme court took the arguments under advisement.

Tom Renick, attorney for the board of education of the Muhlenberg centralized school district, plaintiff in the original action, asserted before the court that the Pickaway County board of education did not have the power under Ohio law to transfer one centralized school district to another.

(In the original action, the board sought to enjoin the county board from effecting the transfer. The case was lost by the plaintiff in common pleas court, but the court of appeals later reversed the decision, and the county board then filed for review in the supreme court.)

Charles Gerhardt, counsel for the Pickaway board of education, argued before the court that Ohio law did give the school officials power to make the transfer.

Following conclusion of his argument, Gerhardt said that the board passed a resolution ordering the transfer on the recommendation of E. N. Dietrich, state director of education.

Young Bandit Named in Plot

PRISON WARDEN TELLS DETAILS OF DARING PLAN

Seven Convicts Listed After Henderson Nips Hostage Grab Idea

A young criminal sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary last June 13 by Judge Meeker Terwilliger to serve 10 to 25 years for armed robbery of the George Adkins filling station on the Jackson Pike was linked Thursday by Warden Frank D. Henderson of the penitentiary as one of seven desperate convicts who attempted to escape in a plot described by Henderson as "fantastic, hair-brained, melodramatic and suicidal."

Named by Warden Henderson was Cecil (Red) Martin, 24, of Columbus, arrested after an investigation that resulted in his plea of guilty to the robbery charges. Arrested with Martin was Raymond Taylor, another Columbus youth with a reformatory record.

Plot Described

The warden made public for the first time the bizarre escape plot which was broken up March 4, a few hours before it was to have been culminated.

The escape layout, according to Henderson, was plotted by Frank Benzowski, 33, Cuyahoga County, serving a 10-20 year robbery sentence. Benzowski, and these accomplices are in the block set aside for incorrigibles:

Walter Szafranski, 25, second degree murder lifer from Cuyahoga County; Martin; John Gleeton, 38, serving an automobile theft term from Hamilton County; Leroy Keith, 26, second degree murder lifer from Trumbull County; Vernon Taylor, Union County bank robber serving life; Russell Clark, 41, reputed to be the last of the Dillinger gang, serving life for first degree murder committed in Allen County in 1934.

To Dress As Runners

Tracing details of the plot, the warden declared that on the morning of March 5, Benzowski, Szafranski, Martin and Gleeton, disguised as prison runners, were to enter the Protestant chapel

CLOTURE ANGLE CONSIDERED FOR LYNCHING BILL

WASHINGTON, March 14 — Senate backers of anti-lynching legislation said today they will try to invoke the drastic expedient of cloture to bring a vote on the measure.

Senator Wagner (D) New York, co-author of the anti-lynching bill, which will be formally reported to the full senate judiciary committee next Monday said:

"We intend to pass this legislation at this session of congress, and we will try to invoke cloture if we run into a filibuster against it."

To invoke cloture — limitation of debate—two-thirds of the senate must assent.

The anti-lynching bill commands sufficient votes to pass, once it reaches a final vote, but southern members were lined up solidly to filibuster against such a vote.

HAIRCUT PRICE OUTLAWED

RUSSO-FINNISH peace terms hold the interest of the world. The important, but now shell-wrecked city of Viipuri, once Finland's third largest city, together with the islands in its bay, goes to Russia as one of the most important provisions of the terms. Premier Vyacheslaff M. Molotov, chairman of the council of the people's commissars of the U. S. S. R., and Juho Paasikivi, Finnish minister, were among those who signed the peace treaty. The treaty was ratified by the Finnish Diet.

NEARLY HALF MILLION FINNS HOMELESS AND DESTITUTE AS RESULT OF WARFARE

HELSINKI, March 14—With the guns stilled but the bitterness and sorrow unabated, war-ravaged Finland surveyed the cost of its losing battle today as authorities estimated some 400,000 persons were homeless and destitute as a result of the Russo-Finnish conflict.

In the whittled-down domain left by the Moscow peace treaty, the nation began making reconstruction plans after Finland's commander-in-chief, Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustav Mannerheim, paid farewell to his troops and praised their courage, but bitterly denounced Scandinavia's hindurance of outside aid.

Amid the desolation of the bomb and flame wrecked cities, the 15,000 Finnish soldiers killed and the other thousands wounded, Finland saw one faint gleam of hope for the future.

This was an announcement by Foreign Minister Vaino A. Tanner that Norway, Sweden and Finland had agreed, before the Finnish delegation went to Moscow to sue for peace, to undertake mutual conversations with the object of guaranteeing their frontiers.

These talks, said Tanner, will be continued in a few days. He stressed that they had been initiated by Finland.

Pressure Denied

Tanner also denied that the Anglo-French Allies had brought pressure to bear on Finland either before or during the war. He declared both British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and French Premier Edouard Daladier plainly stated Finland must reach her own conclusions on the question of requesting outside aid against Russia.

(A Reuters dispatch from Oslo said that the Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht stated Norway replied affirmatively two days ago in response to inquries as to whether it was prepared to consider the possibility of establishing a defensive alliance among Norway, Sweden and Finland.

(Another Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said there was no confirmation in the Swedish capital that such negotiations already have begun.)

(The London Daily Express published what was construed as a Russian warning against any regional pact among Finland, Sweden and Norway. A Leningrad spokesman was quoted as stating:

("Russia has offered her hand to Finland and expects Finland to keep out of associations which would be considered a dangerous conspiracy against the Soviet Union. Such a violation of the new (peace) agreement would have serious consequences.")

Informed Scandinavian circles, meanwhile, doubted that the proposed agreement among Finland, Sweden and Norway would be concluded, particularly in view of Norwegian opposition and the fact that such a pact is prohibited under terms of the Russo-Finnish peace agreement.

It was considered possible, however, that some sort of "silent gentlemen's agreement" between Sweden and Finland might be worked out later on.

With the peace delegates back from Moscow, it was expected the government headed by Premier Risto Ryti would resign shortly, giving way to a provisional government.

Under this regime, it was anticipated, the final formalities of peace and resumption of diplomatic relations with Russia would be carried out. Thereafter a new permanent cabinet would be formed.

No serious crisis was expected, as both military and political leaders are said to agree that peace with Russia was Finland's only course.

It was disclosed the hostilities continued right to the moment that the armistice took effect at 11 a. m. yesterday, but Finnish circles denied the Russian claim that Viborg (Viipuri) was occupied by a storming attack. Yesterday morning Russian airmen dropped the final bombs of the war on Rovaniemi and Kemijaervi, wounding three civilians.

A government proclamation said peace was made with Russia "in full realization that the people would be saved a greater misfortune." It added:

"Through the sacrifice of our youth we are able to maintain the most valuable things we possess —freedom and national honor— and we have thus earned the right to rehabilitation on those terms."

In his final order of the day, Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim paid tribute to the 15,000 slain Finnish troops and said only two battalions of foreign volunteers reached Finland in time to join the fight.

Mannerheim pictured Finland as one of the last barriers in Europe against Bolshevism and said:

"We are proudly conscious of our historic duty to continue the defense of western civilization, our heritage for centuries.

"But we also know that he have

Indian Gunman Shoots British Punjab Envoy

LONDON, March 14—Mohamed Singh Azad, the Indian gunman who yesterday assassinated Sir Michael O'Dwyer, lieutenant governor of Punjab during the Amritzar massacre of 1919, was charged formally with murder today.

The Indian was brought into Bow Street police court under a heavy guard and the murder charge was lodged. Azad then was remanded in custody for a week.

Bullets fired by the gunman when he felled Sir Michael also wounded the Marquess of Zetland, secretary of state for India, Sir Louis Dane and Maron Lamington, former governor of Bombay.

(At Calcutta the newspaper Star of India termed the assassination a "dastardly deed" and added:

("However bitter India might have felt against Sir Michael, she hangs her head in shame as no one wished his death.")

Azad, who appeared unaware of the seriousness of his position as he stood in the courtroom, denied that he had intended to kill the former lieutenant governor, who was one of England's most famous authorities on Indian affairs.

"I didn't mean to kill him," Azad told the court. "I just did it to protest. I didn't mean to kill anybody."

Late last night the Indian in a statement to police said that his

INQUIRY LOOMS INTO SALES OF WAR EQUIPMENT

WASHINGTON, March 14 — Searching investigation of U. S. airplane and munitions sales to the Allies was virtually assured today as demand for an inquiry grew in both senate and house.

Despite vehement administration denials, widespread fears were voiced by members of congress that American military secrets are being divulged to the Allies and the American rearmament program hampered.

A report that the army has released an anti-aircraft detector for foreign sales was received by members of a senate group. A member of the same group expressed fear that the carefully guarded army anti-aircraft firing invention has been disclosed.

DIES UNCOVERS EVIDENCE THAT REDS ARE BUSY

WASHINGTON, March 14 — The Dies committee has uncovered evidence which it believes will reveal working of a Soviet Russian military police in the United States, it was disclosed today as Chairman Martin Dies (D) Texas, of the committee, returned to Washington.

Dies, who went to Florida on advice of his physician, cut short his trip to return here for final investigations preparatory to hearings on the spy case.

While refusing to disclose details Dies asserted that the committee will call one of the chief operatives in the Soviet spy system as a witness.

"There is no doubt about activities of Communist secret agents," said Dies.

The committee has received information, it was reliably reported, that the wife of a Soviet Russian agent was formerly employed in the office of a cabinet member in Washington.

Dies also announced that the committee will shortly open inquiry into certain consumers organizations on the basis of a report of Communist infiltration and control of many of them.

Huge Import-Export Bank Credit Not Affected By End Of War

WASHINGTON, March 14— Finland appealed to the American people today to aid her in binding up the wounds of war.

The request for continuation of the financial help that the United States public has been sending to Helsinki since the Russian invasion was made by Finnish Minister Hjalmar Procope. It came only a few hours after President Roosevelt publicly condemned Soviet Russia's victory by overwhelming force and said the hard-fighting Finns had "increased the respect and warm regard" in which they are held in America.

Procope, though bowed in spirit by his country's military defeat, nevertheless declared that Finland "would continue to fulfill her duty amongst other free peoples.

O'Ryan's organization was gathering funds for arms for Finland. Sports benefits for the Finns also will continue with the all-star baseball game being played Sunday in Tampa, Fla., and various track meets also going on as scheduled.)

"Finland," the minister said in a prepared statement, "has been fighting against overwhelming odds. She has shown that a small nation can resist an agression and can do her duty in defense of the highest ideals of mankind. She has fought alone—and finally she has been forced to make peace.

"The peace is hard, but Finland

FREDDIE BRUNGS BREAKS HIS PAROLE FOURTH TIME

Police authorities took Fred Brungs, 27, South Pickaway Street, in custody at 1:45 a. m. Thursday and turned him over to state authorities who returned him to the Ohio Penitentiary in Columbus for the fourth violation of his parole.

Originally sentenced five years ago on a burglary charge, Brungs was sent to the reformatory at Mansfield. He was paroled recently and the present violation requires him to finish the remainder of his sentence at the penitentiary. He no longer is eligible for further parole.

His present parole violation is based on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

EXAMINERS LAUD COUNTY SHERIFF FOR FOOD COSTS

Report Says Radcliff Could Be Spending Much More Than 51 Cents Daily

Accommodation For Federal Prisoners Discussed By Official

An examination of the office of Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff, conducted by state examiners for the period from April 1, 1938 to September 5, 1939, resulted in commendation for the sheriff for the conduct of his department.

The commendation came for the branch of the office that is nearest the taxpayer's pocketbook, that concerning meals to prisoners, this figure being probably the most important single item in the office's operation.

The report declared:

"Sheriff Radcliff feeds the Pickaway County prisoners under the provisions of Section 2850 G. C. He purchased the necessary food supplies and prepared the meals at an average price per day of 51.55 cents during the period covered by this audit. The law provides that the cost of feeding the prisoners shall not exceed 75 cents per day.

"Sheriff Radcliff deserves commendation for keeping this cost down to a figure far below what the law specifies as the maximum."

After briefly discussing the various functions of the office the report finds also that the county has about $180.75 due from the federal government for keeping prisoners in the county jail under a contract. The finding covers prisoners in transit who have been permitted to remain in the county cells overnight awaiting transfer to another city the next morning. Sheriff Radcliff pointed out that he believed overnight care in the couty jail could be considered as accommodation only and that he had made no charge for such keeping.

He pointed out that many times when he was transferring prisoners from one city to another that he had kept them in various city jails overnight and had never been asked to pay for their keep.

"Under our contract with the government," he said, "a charge can be made only when a commitment paper is produced. In these "accommodation" confinements there was no commitment paper so I didn't charge for it."

Many of the federal prisoners kept in the county jail for which the examiners say there should have been a charge were put there when Bryan Custer, former deputy, was serving as Deputy U. S. Marshal. Custer, making a long trip with a prisoner, would often arrive in Circleville late at night and house his prisoner in the local jail until the next morning.

LOHR UP FOR PAROLE

Fred Lohr, admitted to the Ohio penitentiary from Pickaway County in May, 1939, on a non-support charge, will be eligible for a parole hearing after May 1. He is now serving a one to three year term at the London Prison farm.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

The man, woman or child who cannot thoroughly enjoy every minute of "Young Tom Edison," which opens Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre for an engagement of three days, is not human and never was young.

Here is a picture which a reviewer can recommend without fear of contradiction. It is a beautifully human story of a boy—of any generation and any walk of life—who triumphs against the stigma of being considered strange. It has everything—comedy, adventure, thrills, tears, human interest and family love.

As Tom Edison, Mickey Rooney shows his right to the claim of being an actor. He is ideally cast and has never been more lovable, not even as Andy Hardy. As his sister, Virginia Weidler, has a role that definitely makes her a star. Fay Bainter and George Bancroft, as Edison's parents, will be remembered as long as motion pictures endure.

4,000,000 MASKS WASTED

LONDON—Over 4,000,000 gas-masks have been wasted owing to bad distribution, according to a report issued by Sir Gilbert Upcott, Comptroller and Auditor-General of the Exchequer and Audit Department. Nearly 45 million respirators were needed for the population and testing purposes the report reveals, but over 50,000,000 had been issued.

We Americans are lucky devils, with nothing to fight about but politics, which is our favorite sport anyway.

COLUMBUS' GAS RATE FIGHT AT END OF STRING?

COLUMBUS March, 14—Settlement of the 15-year-old Columbus gas rate fight appeared imminent today as council planned to meet with gas company officials to discuss a proposed new 61-cent rate.

The new company offer also included an increase in refund to $1,292,165. Company officials said that the average refund for the years 1925, 1926 and 1927, when the money was impounded, would be approximately $18.38 per customer.

The present average paid by consumers is 56.22 cents per thousand cubic feet. Monday night council unanimously rejected a 63.76-cent rate proposed by the company.

CHECK 'ARTIST' HUNTED BY ROSS COUNTY NABBED

CHILLICOTHE, March 14—A smile of relief came over the face of Police Chief Russell Poole when information was received that R. W. Watson, alias R. W. Ward plus a string of half a hundred other phoney names, who used the mythical name of "The Milner Corporation of Chillicothe" as a firm on which to draw checks, had been arrested by the Indiana State Police.

Explaining the "myth" to hundreds of victims all over the nation who cashed checks for Watson did "business" with the bogus corporation kept the Chillicothe Police and the Citizens National Bank pretty busy as the checks kept turning up.

A woman who said her name was "Iris Walters", Cincinnati, was caught with Watson by the police near Indianapolis. That he had collected between $15,000 to $20,000 on the bogus checks was the boast that Watson had made to the police. This boast, officials say, is modest.

Watson served five years as a ward in Michigan State Prison, 13 years in the Iowa State Prison and the Federal authorities hold a fugitive warrant for him for the robbery of a bank in 1939, the records reveal.

YOUNG CONFEDERATE

The story of Sam Davis, 21-year-old Confederate spy, who chose death on the gallows rather than betray his superior officer, will be the subject of a Cavalcade of America air dramatization, Tuesday evening, March 19. Elliott Reid, youthful stage and radio actor, will be heard in the role of Davis.

The Cavalcade radio drama is based on a tale from Marquis James' colorful collection of historical sketches, "They Had Their Hour". The episode to be broadcast occurred in November 1863, when the armies of the North and South were at close grips in Tennessee. Nashville had surrendered to Union forces, but the southern General Braxton Bragg still held Cattanooga. Union defense plans for Nashville had fallen into the possession of Chief Captain Coleman of the Confederate Intelligence Service. To got them through Yankee lines to General Bragg in Chattanooga was of primary importance.

Because of his boyish looks, Sam Davis was selected as the scout most likely to pass through Union lines. The circumstances of his failure, his capture and his heroic loyalty to Coleman is one of the almost forgotten, but highly dramatic stories of the period.

BRENT AND FRANCIS

The third successive four star production in the Radio Theatre is "The Rains Came" which features George Brent, Kay Francis, Jean Parker, and Jim Ameche on Monday, March 18. Cecil B. DeMille, the producer, seems determined to outdo himself in strong casts for the presentation regularly heard over the Columbia network at 9 p. m.

Based on the screenplay that was taken from Louis Bromfield's successful novel on India, "The Rains Came" will have George Brent in the role of Tom Ransome which he played in the picture. Tom is a London wastrel fascinated with life in India because his friendship with Major Safti (Jim Ameche), well-known Indian surgeon, permits him to move about in the highest society of the land.

Tom is invited to a party where he meets Fern Simon, (Jean Parker), rebellious daughter of a missionary. The arrival of Lord and Lady Esketh at the Maharajah's palace causes Ransome to leave Fern much sooner than he desires. He remembers Lady Esketh as one of his old amours and expects trouble.

Lady Esketh is fascinated with Major Safti who at first hardly notices her. But the torrential rains change all that with dramatic suddenness.

G. O. P. OF OHIO MEETS APRIL 3 TO TALK PLANS

Confabs Both Afternoon And Evening To Be Staged In Auditorium

REP. MARTIN TO TALK

Party Bigwigs Will Be On Hand For Conference In Columbus

COLUMBUS, March 14 — Republicans of Ohio will meet in Columbus Wednesday, April 3 for a review of party accomplishments and a preview of Republican policies during and after the 1940 campaign.

Meeting in Columbus January 31, the Republican State Committee recommended that such a party roll-call be held between the candidates' filing deadline, March 15, and the primaries, May 14. Pursuant to this decision, State Chairman Ed D. Schorr today announced afternoon and evening sessions at the Columbus Auditorium, April 3.

Senator Robert A. Taft, Ohio's Republican presidential candidate, has advised Chairman Schorr that he will attend both sessions.

Governor John W. Bricker, who filed petitions Wednesday for renomination, will mingle with visiting delegations at the auditorium.

Members of the Ohio Republican group in congress have accepted invitations contingent on their duties in Washington. Through Senator Taft they have asked Representatives Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, Republican floor leader in the national house of representatives, to join the trek to Columbus.

Martin May Speak

Conditional on his ability to leave his legislative duties in Washington, Congressman Martin will be the principal speaker at the afternoon session which will begin at 2 o'clock.

Republican members of the Ohio Supreme Court, the governor's cabinet, the Ohio senate and house are expected at the rally.

Republican city and county officials throughout Ohio will be invited.

In the evening, special entertainment will precede addresses by Senator Taft and Governor Bricker on national and state issues.

Bands, singers and musical specialties will be interspersed, afternoon and evening.

Governor Bricker, Lieutenant Governor Paul M. Herbert, Secretary of State Earl Griffith, Treasurer of State Don H. Ebright and Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert will hold "open house" at their offices in the capitol on the morning of April 3. State officials other than Governor Bricker will be heard at the afternoon session.

Senator Taft will hold a reception at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel, the morning of April 3, and will entertain Ohio's 52 endorsed delegates to the Republican national convention at dinner that evening, with Mrs. Taft assisting.

Governor Bricker and Mrs. Bricker will entertain members of the Republican State Committee at the executive mansion Tuesday evening, April 2.

Delegations Determined

Republican county chairmen and chairwomen throughout Ohio will be authorized to issue tickets of admission to Columbus Auditorium on a basis of the county votes for Governor Bricker at the 1938 election. Delegations will be assigned to specific reservations in the hall.

State Chairman Schorr, who will preside at the April 3 "review-preview," stressed the importance of the meeting as an occasion for "taking stock and laying the groundwork for the 1940 campaign."

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

THE PRICE OF PRIDE

National income for 1939 has just been estimated by the Department of Commerce at $68,500,000,000. This is the second-best year since Mr. Roosevelt became President. Despite the fact that it is still some fourteen billions under 1929, it has justified considerable optimism.

It seems almost ungracious therefore even to point out some underlying facts. But these facts will demand to be heard sooner or later. One, of course, is that a part of this prosperity—in aircraft, and national defense, for example—depends upon war, which always destroys more prosperity than it creates. Another fact is that we ought to be more disturbed over an unbalanced budget when business is reasonably good than when it is bad. If we can't pay our bills in good times, when can we?

PETTENGILL

The materials for a real prosperity are at hand and the recipe is known.

First, as to the material:

Bank deposits are the largest in the history of the United States. They exceed $57 billion. They are looking for jobs. People hesitate to take the responsibility of giving them jobs. Why?

Another new all-time record has been made by money. It is with reference to velocity of circulation, the way we measure how fast dollars move around. Velocity of circultaion today is like molasses is March. In New York City banks it is only 29 percent of the 1919-1925 average, lower than for any month for which records exist. In banks outside New York City, velocity is also at a new low point. The rate of turnover of money for the entire nation has steadily declined since 1928, ten years ago, and has done so without interruption except for brief periods in 1936 and 1937.

Here we have two all-time, all-American records—both bad. If conditions were such that confidence in future business existed, the potentiality of good from these figures is smply staggering. These $57 billion idle dollars are enough to pay wages to these 8,000,000 idle men, at $1,000 a year each, without stopping, until April 1947, seven years and one month from now.

And because these $57 billion aren't hard at work we continue with the alternative of $3 billion a year of new government debt, and a crushing tax load, to finance WPA and other substitutes for prosperity.

"'Tis pride that pulls the country down". Some day these 8,000,000 idle men may realize that it is the stubborn pride of their own government which stands between them and a decent job in private employment. Some day they will say to themselves, "If these dollars were busy, I'd have a job." And they are going to growl, "Who's stopping them?" That will be a good time to stand from under. Some of them must have asked this question in the 17th Ohio Congressional District the other day. And I'm not suggesting that any one vote for any particular party. But it is necessary to vote for men of both parties who want business to do business and are neither Socialists nor so high and mighty that nobody can tell them anything. Plenty of Democratic Congressmen have fought as hard and braver than Republicans against this creeping paralysis of collectivism.

The answers to the question why we have idle men and idle money are now pretty well known. One is NLRB, Another is SEC, and a hundred other bureaus bossing business and investors around. Another is high and higher taxes. Another is the unbalanced budget and what it may lead to. Another is the kind of Supreme Court we now have. Another is the question mark about a third term—how business would hum if that question were answered the right way! Another is the constant stream of new rules and regulations so that, as a great judge—Benjamin Cardozo—said, "Men are viewed as malefactors for failure to consent to the unknown and the unknowable".

Two or three years ago Mr. Roosevelt told Congress that the new government machine might need to have a nut tightened here and loosened there. And perhaps a little oil of humility in the joints. But did he mean it? Can you get a single nut loosened except after a terrific fight between Congress and the President? No, sir. "We must not let the people down"!

ASHVILLE

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

For the last several days we've neglected getting over to the grain elevators where the neighborhood farmers have almost daily, tons of feed prepared for their farm animals and poultry. From one-half to a dozen different ingredients go into a single batch of poultry feed. More and better eggs is the claim. Up to this time no mail shipments of chicks have arrived at the local postoffice. The nearby Hedges' Leghorn farm with its incubator now in operation, turns out a new lot of chicks each week.

—Ashville—

Since we have a county-office-seeking-candidate right here in the village in the person of Clyde Brinker, headquarters' daily viistors are making a list and trying to name all those who in the last fifty years have held a county office from this community. We'll make a report on this later, when once the list is completed.

—Ashville—

For this, that and other reasons the local Odd Fellow's Lodge has gradually drifted into one of those "inocuous desuetudes" Grover Cleveland used to tell us about when things weren't going so good. But Tuesday evening about twenty of the I. O. O. F. boys from one of the live Columbus lodges paid a visit to the few remaining members here at the lodge room and as a result of this visit an effort will be made to increase the present membership with a hope of bringing the organization back to where it once was in both number and interest.

—Ashville—

The several hundred acres of land required for the planting of the coming Crites Canning factory pea crop, has been secured and as soon as the weather conditions get favorable seeding will begin. Both sweet corn and pumpkin will claim their good acreage share, too.

—Ashville—

Now, this morning at seven o'clock, the earth is blanketed with about two inches of snow, well covering too, trees and shrubery and at this instant snowing hard, apparently coming in from the southeast. And in numbers for the winter, according to what the snow recorder at headquarters tells us, this is number twelve, and to fit in right with that never failing sign, there are six more to come. March being but half through and with all of April ahead, does look as though the sign man really does know his stuff.

—Ashville—

The power shovel man and all, came in from somewhere yesterday to begin scooping out the dirt on the first one of those new dwellings we are to have for the building season 1940, throwing in for good measure, the new municipal building.

PRISON WARDEN TELLS DETAILS OF DARING PLAN

Cecil (Red) Martin, Sent Up From County, Linked With Incorrigibles

where a classification board meeting was to be in progress.

With a rope made for the purpose, the convicts planned to bind the guards present and seize Henderson, Deputy Warden August Ptak and Chief Clerk Dan Bonzo as hostages.

Prison Chaplains Father John Sullivan and K. E. Wall, Guard Captain J. C. DeLong and Dr. George Keil, prison physician, were to have been bound also.

Pointing a knife at his throat, Benzowski would have ordered Henderson to call L block and direct guards to release Keith, Taylor and Clark.

Then, still holding their hostages, the seven men were to seize a Central Warehouse truck and drive to the L block tower. Standing on top of the truck, they would have tossed a rope over the 32-foot wall, climbed to the top and slid down to the street. Henderson said accomplices in a "black sedan" were to have been waiting on the outside.

Never Had Chance

"They never had a chance," the warden declared.

"In the first place," he continued, "the tower guards are under orders to shoot to kill, regardless of who is held as hostage. Secondly, the L block guards would not have released Keith, Taylor and Clark under any circumstances.

"Besides that, there would have been more prisoners at the classification board meeting than prison officials. That fact in itself probably would have frustrated the plans."

The warden revealed that he had been tipped of the plot two months before it was to have occurred. He said he waited until the "opportune" moment to round up the escape gang.

Although a close vigilance was maintained for several days, prison guards never spotted the accomplices who were supposed to whisk the men away from prison, the warden said.

Benzwoski, Henderson said, had fashioned a crude, four inch knife which was to have been an instrumental factor in the escape.

An eighth man, Joe Filkowski, known in prison as the "phantom of the flat," was questioned but absolved by the warden.

APRIL 5 DEADLINE SET FOR ORATORY ENTRIES

April 5 was announced as the deadline for schools to make their entry in the Pickaway County oratorical contest which will be held at the New Holland school April 19, Harold K. Costlow, president-secretary of the contest, announced.

School entries are limited to one contestant and an alternate in case the regularly entered contestant cannot appear. The length of the orations is not to exceed 1,000 words.

The contest is staged each year at the school that had the winning entry the previous year. The president-secretary of the contest is the superintendent of the school that entered the winning contestant. A loving cup is given to the school whose contestant is declared the winner.

THEFT OF COAL SENDS DERBYITES BEFORE J. P.

In an attempt to smash the series of coal robberies from the Alva Hill Grain Company of Derby, Constable John Stage arrested William Underwood and Emery Rader, both of Derby Wednesday night.

At hearings in the county jail Thursday, B. T. Hedges, justice of the peace, fined Underwood, who pleaded guilty, $200 and costs and sentenced him to 30 days in jail. Underwood will remain at the county jail until the fine and the sentence are served since he defaulted in payment.

Hearing Rader's case, Squire Hedges fined the boy $50 and costs and suspended the fine. Rader was released on promise to pay the costs and on his promise of good behavior.

Alva Hill, proprietor of the grain company, filed the affidavits charging the two with the theft of 150 pounds of coal. He said that coal had been stolen from the yards all winter.

Minister Claims Nation Will Carry On Duties Among Democracies

is not defeated. Finland is still a free democratic country and Finland will continue to fulfill her duties among other free peoples.

"The sacrifices and the suffering of Finland at this moment are heavy. Her needs for food, clothing and medical supplies and for the restoration of her devastated homes are great and urgent.

"The assistance of the American people in meeting these needs has been and still is of vital importance to us."

That U. S. government aid to Finland will be continued was assured by the statement of Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, that the war's end would not affect the $20,000,000 credit given the little country by the export-import bank.

It was understood in Washington that most of the private agencies that have been collecting relief funds for Finland will continue their work.

F. D. 'S Statement

Mr. Roosevelt implied a strong hope that Finland will be able to clear up the debris of war and shape a happy destiny when he said in a statement last night:

"By their unexcelled valor and strong resistance in the face of overwhelming armed forces, (the Finns) have won the moral right to live in everlasting peace and independence in the land they have so bravely defended."

One phrase of the President's statement piqued the curiosity of Washington observers:

"The ending of this (Russo-Finnish) war does not yet clarify the inherent right of small nations to the maintenance of their integrity against attack by superior force."

To some officials it appeared that the President was implying that the Democratic powers must collectively provide safety in an ordered world before such nations as Finland could enjoy their "inherent right" to territorial and political integrity.

NEW YORK — Although the Russo-Finnish war has ended, contributions continued pouring in today at headquarters of the Finnish Relief Fund headed by Herbert Hoover who has announced the campaign will go forward despite the peace. A near record high of $40,000 was received yesterday when news of the peace became official.

PARIS—American Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles conferred with Premier Edouard Daladier today after arriving in Paris from London aboard a camouflaged De Haviland bombing plane. Welles was scheduled to depart for Rome by train tonight. In the Italian capital, President Roosevelt's fact-finder was to confer again with Premier Mussolini before returning to the United States.

The Finnish commander estimated Russian losses in the war at 200,000 killed and wounded.

Soldiers Praised

Highest praise was bestowed on the Finnish troops by Mannerheim:

"Soldiers," he said, "I have fought on many battlefields, but never have I seen warriors your equal. I am as proud of you as though you were my own children. . . . .

"Unfortunately, the magnificent promise of help given us by the Western Powers could not be fulfilled because our neighbors, looking after their own houses, refused troops the right of transit."

in both senate and house that high ranking officers of the army and navy are vigorously opposed to releasing some of their most modern weapons for purchase by Great Britain and France.

President Roosevelt, after canvassing the situation with army and navy chieftians, was reported to satisfied that the Allied purchases are not affecting his defense expansion program. Rumors gained currency that Mr. Roosevelt went over the heads of army and navy officers to permit sale of fast planes and other arms.

The house military affairs aviation subcommittee postponed until early next week testimony of Secretary of War Woodring on the subject.

GERHARDT AND KELLER FILE THEIR PETITIONS

George E. Gerhardt, Democrat, seeking re-election as county prosecutor, filed his petitions with Claude Kraft, clerk of the Board of Elections, Thursday. Gerhardt's one opponent for the office who has filed is Sterling Lamb, who is running for the Republican nomination.

Adding to the long list of those who have filed for nomination as county commissioner, John Keller, Democratic incumbent, delivered his petitions to the clerk Thursday, also.

A stumbling block to a Roosevelt-Donahey ticket might be the senator's recent announcement he is going to retire from politics at the end of his present senatorial term. He declared he was retiring "after 35 years in official service for a much needed rest and the preservation of my health."

"Could Be Drafted"

Some New Dealers, however, believe Donahey can be drafted along with the President and that if once nominated, he would reconsider his retirement and enter the political wars once more.

There is speculation whether the President and Donahey discussed the 1940 ticket at their Tuesday conference. Belief prevailed the President had called in Donahey to ask him to reconsider his announced retirement. Donahey would not discuss the visit.

23 MEXICANS DIE AS TEXAS TRAIN AND TRUCK HIT

ALAMO, Tex., March 14—At least 23 persons were killed and seventeen were critically injured today when a west-bound Missouri-Pacific passenger train crashed into a truck carrying 49 field workers at a grade crossing near the East Alamo town limits.

Mutilated bodies were strewn along the tracks for a quarter of a mile. Every available ambulance in the area rushed the injured to hospitals at McAllen and Mercedes.

First reports said the laborers, all Mexicans, were from Rio Grande City, and were enroute to an orchard north of Alamo to harvest citrus fruit.

None of the dead or injured was immediately identified.

The truck transporting them burst into flames after the crash and was carried, a flaming torch, along the tracks in front of the locomotive.

Two charred bodies were found on the front of the locomotive.

Azad also informed authorities, it was alleged, that he had come to England for the express purpose of killing. He was quoted as saying:

"I put a couple of lovelies in his stomach. He'll be quiet now."

According to authorities, Azad, described as an Indian University graduate, said that he arrived in England several months ago with about $400.

He remained at Southampton, buying a soldier's gun for about $50 and arrived in London only two days ago.

Azad said he had sold his watch a few hours prior to the shooting, explaining:

"I don't need that anymore."

Winter Returns for At Least A Brief Visit

With a blanket of snow covering much of the state and the mercury skidding downward, winter paid a return visit to Ohio today.

Forecasters predicted cloudy and colder weather, with light snow or rain continuing throughout the day. The thermometer was scheduled to dip even further tonight. Tomorrow was to be generally fair, except for snow flurries in northeast portion.

Temperatures hovered around the thirties at 7 a. m., and were gradually receding. Columbus and Cleveland reported 29 degrees, Akron, Toledo and Cincinnati 30, while Dayton recorded 26.

The highway patrol reported driving conditions hazardous, with roads icy under a snow blanket that in some sections reached a depth of three inches. Only the extreme south and southeast portions escaped.

With the promise of spring being given by the rising temperatures every day for the last three weeks, Old Man Winter—and we call him that because he seems to have been around for so long—passed through Circleville again Wednesday night signing the city's book of hospitality with that white, feathery handwriting.

A puzzled look spread over the faces of the citizens of Circleville when they opened sleepy eyes Thursday and learned who their visitor during the night had been. Judging from the dampness of the white ink used, it is apparent that the "guest" doesn't plan to remain here very long.

Snow shovels and brooms that had been put away pending his annual visit next year were hustled out of the basements and the scrape of metal and the swish of broomstraws over cement was heard throughout the town.

The service department's snow plow was back on Court and Main Streets clearing the roads for the day's traffic. The state highway department reported that all the roads were open and that plows were at work to keep them from becoming snowbound.

A balmy spring temperature of 53 dropped to 26 by Thursday morning as the three inches of snow covered the streets. Slush making the streets slippery offered a traffic hazard and sanding operations are under way in the county wherever the highway department feels that the added protection is necessary.

"Well, winter's back again" and "I hope it doesn't last long" were the comments on everyone's tongue Thursday morning. Weather bureau indications of higher temperatures and fair weather for Friday will probably make both statements correct.

APRIL 9 BALLOT IN ILLINOIS WINS MUCH ATTENTION

Big For Convention Help By Roosevelt, Garner Major Highlight

STATE TICKET ACTIVE

Rep. Fish And New York Mayor Drop Out; Dewey In G. O. P. Field

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 14—Over the Illinois prairies the mud is flying today.

It's not the mud that from pioneer days mired down the traveler until hard roads came into their own.

It's political mud — thicker, squashier and in larger quantities that has been seen in some years.

Primary day is set for April 9. A plethora of candidates awaits the verdict of the voters.

Entered in the state's preferential primaries are President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner on the Democratic side and Thomas E. Dewey, New York gang busting prosecutor, as the sole Republican entry.

Dewey had opposition in the form of Congressman Hamilton Fish, one-time big time footballer, dynamic Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of the City of New York. Both, however, dropped out of the race before the final day for withdrawals.

The battle for state offices is a wide-open one. This is true in the Republican primary by design, in the Democratic side by accident.

Wide-Open G. O. P. Race

The Republicans agreed not to attempt to select a state ticket. None was selected. Any one that felt like entering the primary did so. Many felt like it.

The Democrats, however, tried slate-making with disastrous results.

The bigwigs of the party assembled. They held meeting after meeting at the executive mansion. Biggest of those present were Gov. Henry Horner, recovering from over a year's illness, and Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago. With the smaller fry their huddles went on.

In the background was the shadow of Lt. Gov. John Stelle. Stelle felt that if Gov. Henry Horner decided not to seek a third term that she should get the gubernatorial bid. He made no bones about his views — in fact he said time and again that he would seek re-election if Gov. Horner tried for a third term but that he would be a candidate for governor if Mr. Horner quit the race.

Official Party Chores

The climaz came with a bang. Calling the State Central Committee together, the conferees announced that Gov. Horner is retiring and that Atty. Harry B. Hershey had been chosen as the party candidate for governor. Stelle remained mum.

After another day of conferences, the remainder of the slatemakers' and the state committee's choices for state posts were announced.

Besides Hershey for governor, the endorsements were:

For U. S. Senator, James M. Slattery of Chicago; for Lieutenant Governor, John Stelle; for State Treasurer, Homer Mat Adams of Champaign; for State Auditor, John C. Martin of Salem; for Secretary of State, Edward J. Hughes of Chicago; for Attorney General, Harold G. Ward of Chicago; and for Congressmen at Large, Louie E. Lewis of Christopher and T. V. Smith of Chicago.

This was to be a "harmony" slate.

Opposition Slate Appears

But the leaders' plans went awry. First, State Auditor E. J. Barrett, who had been purged by the slatemakers, objected to his "liquidation" and announced he would seek re-election.

Things ran on for several days and then Stelle announced his candidacy for the party nomination for goveror. Running with him was Barrett for auditor and young Banjemin S. Adamowski of Chicago, minority leader of the Illinois House of Representatives, as a candidate for U. S. Senator.

The "harmony" slate immediately made counter moves. Louie E. Lewis was shifted from the Congressman-at Large position to that of Lieutenant Governor. Walter Orlikoski of Chicago was named to fill the Congressman-at-Large ticket vacancy.

Hurriedly entered in the Democratic U. S. senatorial contest was Gael Sullivan, youthful aide to Mayor Kelley of Chicago, supposedly to offset Adamowski's entry. Before the deadline, however, Sullivan's name was withdrawn.

Petitions were filed in large numbers and now stand forth as an unusually large field of primary candidates.

For governor there are six Democratic and two Republican candidates; for U. S. Senator, three Democrats and two Republicans; for lieutenant governor two Democrats and seven Republicans; for secretary of state one Democrat and thdee Republicans; for state auditor two Democrats and ten Republicans; for attorney general two Democrats and six Republicans; for state treasurer two Democrats and five Republicans; and for congressman at large (two to be nominated) two Democrats and fourteen Republicans.

CATTLE MARKET STRONG DURING AUCTION SALE

A good market with cattle as the outstanding item was reported by the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association after its sale Wednesday. Cattle prices rose 25 to 40 cents with good quality being sold. Hogs were steady and showed a slight rise in a strong sale. There was practically no lamb market because of the shortage, but those on hand sold strongly. Higher prices were reported on a good calve market. Despite the lamb shortage the volume was large.

Friends attributed this to the fact that she never goes shopping—that means being stared at.

QUAKER AMBASSADOR

If and when new ambassadors are exchanged between the United States and Germany — as now seems probable — the man most likely to go to Berlin as U. S. envoy is a Quaker named Clarence Pickett.

Pickett is head of the American Friends Service Committee, a friend of Mrs. Roosevelt's and also close to Myron Taylor, ex-chairman of United States Steel and now American peace negotiator at the Vatican.

Pickett's appointment as Ambassador to Germany is being promoted by these two powerful friends on the ground that the United States needs someone in Berlin who is in touch not merely with Nazi officialdom, but with the German people.

Pickett for many years has helped maintain a Friends' center in both Berlin and Vienna. This dates back to the days immediately after the Armistice, when the Quakers sent relief missions to Austria and Germany, at one time were feeding most of the children in both countries.

Ever since, the Friends' centers in Berlin and Vienna have been given great freedom—even under Hitler.

MINERS' FRIENDS

Pickett now heads all of the Quaker relief work, and has been active not merely in Europe, but particularly among the unemployed in the United States. It was he who initiated the attempt to settle unemployed coal miners at Arthurdale, W. Va., later taken over by Rural Resettlement and now one of Mrs. Roosevelt's pet projects.

Mrs. Roosevelt has given all of her radio income and part of her newspaper income to this and other American Friends Service Committee work. Myron Taylor, when chairman of the U. S. Steel Corporation, also was interested in unemployment among miners and contributed $25,000 annually to Pickett for three years for their relief.

Failure of the United States to keep an ambassador in Berlin was one of the things for which Hitler is reported to have scolded Sumner Welles. Subsequently, Welles worked out a plan whereby Ambassador Dieckhoff, former German Ambassador here, would return to Washington.

AMERICA'S STEP - CHILDREN

Secretary Ickes is having a tough time getting someone to head his Division of Territories Island Possessions. No less than four people have been offered the job since the promotion of Dr. Ernest Gruening to be Governor of Alaska. Everyone of them turned it down.

The first was Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, just after he retired from the Navy and from his spectacular mission as commander of the Asiatic Fleet. Then Ickes offered it to Wayne Taylor, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and now an official of the American Red Cross. Taylor also thought it was too much of a headache.

Wayne Coy, secretary to Paul McNutt, next got an invitation. Coy was with McNutt when he was High Commissioner to the Philippines and was considered well qualified for the post. But he refused. Next Ickes offered the job to George A. Malcolm, Attorney General of Puerto Rico. Still no luck.

Meanwhile, the people in these possessions are chafing over the delay in naming an administrator over their affairs.

PIONEER'S LAST REFUGE

LITTLE by little, the idea has been percolating into the heads of unemployed and unsuccessful Americans that such misfortune comes largely from the lack of a "frontier." We are just far enough away in time from the end of our western frontier for the older generation to have forgotten about it and the younger generation never to have known it.

Free land of any value to a settler was nearly all gone before the World War. Attention of easterners and mid-westerners was withdrawn from it by the war and the subsequent industrial boom. Then when the big depression came, homesteading and its associations were but a tradition. The West itself had settled into a fixed pattern, and most of the newcomers who might still drift westward, led by tradition or instinct, were soon disillusioned.

The long drought in the plains completed this disillusionment. Easterners going west ran into sandstorms, and refugees from the wind-eroded lands pushing toward the Pacific were stopped by barriers of prejudice and self-protection.

What now? Some are turning back to the East. And strangely enough, too many of these reversed migrants, old New England becomes a haven. It is surprising, how many deserted farms in Massachusetts, Connecticut and adjoining states are flourishing again. The same phenomenon is said to be appearing in the southeastern states.

Even so, it is impossible to find homes and a living on the land anywhere for all the Americans who want to continue farming. Fewer hands and less soil can produce all the food needed. The place for expansion is, and the opportunities should be, in industry. This is the last refuge of the pioneer.

A BOY'S VIEW OF LIFE

WHEN a sixth grade boy writes a class prophecy he reveals much about contemporary life in his town. Such a forecast, printed in a column of reports from class rooms by pupils, is found in the Fitzgerald, Ga., Herald.

One suspects some little jobs on schoolmates when they are described as "showing off" twenty years hence. Some pals may be flattered a little and others panned. On the whole, however, the list of occupations, from farmer and truck driver through teacher and storekeeper and guard over convicts, seems to suggest pretty much what the sixth-graders' parents and their neighbors are doing.

There is one particularly interesting point. In three of the five marriages the youthful seer anticipates, the wives are helping their husbands "make a living." One of these teaches school while her husband tends cows on a dairy farm. Another does professional sewing to augment the income of a store clerk husband. The third works with her husband in a candy shop.

Class prophets a generation ago didn't take the gainful occupation of wives as a matter of course.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BEHIND RUSSO-FINNISH PEACE MOVE

WASHINGTON—One of the most significant factors behind the Finnish-Russian peace maneuvers is that they were inspired in large part by the invisible hand of the No. 2 Nazi, Field Marshal Hermann Goering.

Acting for him is the most powerful man in Scandinavia, Axel Wenner Gren, who has been a close friend of the German Air Minister ever since Goering married his first wife, the niece of Swedish Baron Rosen. Somewhere in the Finnish-Russian peace picture also (though the State Department denies it) may be Sumner Welles.

Wenner Gren, who controls the Bofors munitions company and is the richest man in Sweden, was on his yacht, the Southern Cross, in the harbor of Nassau a few weeks ago when he received a coded message from Goering. The cable asked him to take the same ship as Welles took on his peace mission.

Wenner Gren flew to New York, boarded the Rex, and when he got to Rome, saw Mussolini before Welles did.

Then he proceeded through Switzerland with Welles to Berlin, where he still is, and where he has been throwing his weight behind an early peace.

BUSINESS AGAINST WAR

Goering's and Wenner Gren's interest in Finnish peace is easy to understand. From the viewpoint of the German army it would be just as disastrous to have Russia sweep through Finland and perhaps on to Sweden, as to have the Allies organize an expeditionary force to stop Russia.

In either case, Sweden's rich iron deposits would fall into the hands of a foreign power.

What the German army wants is a relatively tranquil Russia, from which Germany can draw raw materials. Also, the longer Russia is forced to continue fighting, the more vulnerable she becomes in the south, where are located the rich Batum oil fields, now invaluable to Germany.

Similarly, an Allied expeditionary force sent through Sweden, perhaps turning that country into a battlefield, would ruin the Wenner Gren interests. He is chairman of the Swedish Celullose Company, took over a large part of the Kreuger interests, and heads the Electrolux company, Swedish parent of the American subsidiaries which make vacuum cleaners and refrigerators.

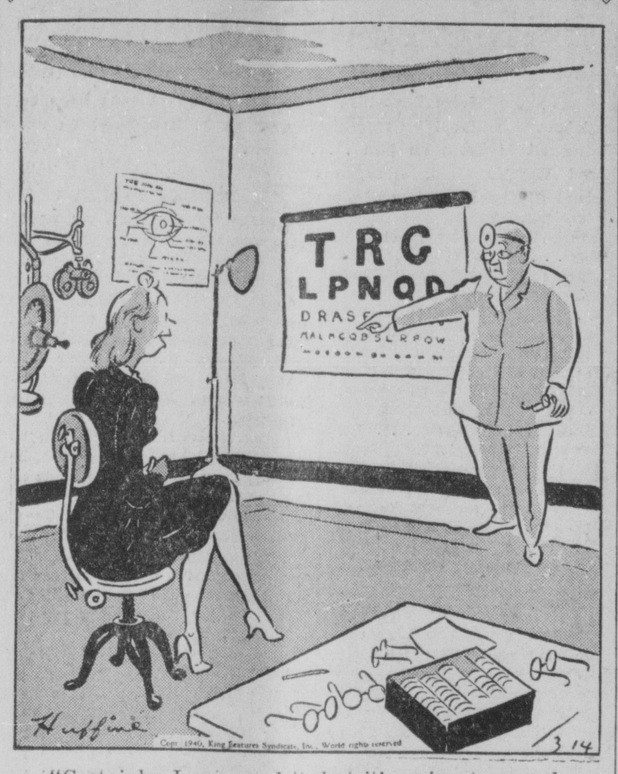

NOTE—The peace activity of Axel Wenner Gren illustrates the attitude of big business in both Wall Street and London's City. Unlike the case on the last war, American bankers are ardent rooters for peace. This time not they but Uncle Sam, through Jesse Jones, is lending the money. Not only is there no dough in war, but if Nazi-Communism wins, the capitalistic system stands in danger.

DIET AND HEALTH

Value of Fruit As First Course

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Is there any scientific basis for the use of fruit as the first course of a meal?

Yes. In the first place, it has been found experimentally that fruits as a pre-meal course reduce the irritating properties of allergents in food and allow people who are sensitive to a large number of foods to get by without any response in the way of hives or asthma. Furthermore, fruits produce preliminary response on the part of the stomach with a rapid concentration of acid and pepsin, which are digestion fluids and used for the digestion of other foods.

It has also been found that fruits reduce the amount of germs in the small and large intestine.

LENTEN REDUCING DIET FOR WEDNESDAY

See Proverbs XV, 17.

Breakfast: Grapefruit, one slice toast with butter; black coffee.

Lunch: Club sandwich, glass of milk, black coffee or tea with lemon.

Dinner: One baked potato with butter to taste; one slice bread with butter; coffee with cream and one lump of sugar.

Treating Itching of External Ear

What is the cause and treatment of itching of the external ear?

This common condition is often called seborrheic dermatitis, which is akin to dandruff. It may be due to invasion of the skin with a special variety of streptococcus germs. Discharge from the ear in the later stages, when the discharge is almost dried up, will produce severe itching and inflammation of the ear. Impacted wax will also do the same thing. Treatment in these latter two instances is to attack the cause.

Itching for which we can find no cause is very difficult to treat and may tax the resources of the dermatologist and the ear specialist combined.

What May Cause Denture Troubles

In a patient wearing an artificial denture, there is an inflammation of the palate and lower jaw. Is this due to the denture material used?

There are five causes of these conditions:

1. Residual infection.
2. Spinous-saw tooth.

Both of these conditions may be revealed by competent x-ray.

3. Mucous glands excreting a type of uric acid that literally burns the tissue. This is really similar to diaper rash in babies. Dr. Francis C. Daly, of Boston, has brought out the fact that this condition is a symptom of approaching anemia. A mouth wash of diluted vinegar as a cleansing agent for the denture is recommended as a temporary relief.

4. Filth, in connection with a denture that is not highly polished on its tissue bearing surface. Dentures should be scrubbed with a good household cleanser and a stiff brush. A dentist friend of mine tells me graphically that where one "mote picker" will, through the years, ruin a denture by this type of cleansing, ten thousand tapwater dabblers will continue to be unkissable.

5. Occlusion, the basis of all dental practice. Normally it is the first factor in a discussion of an efficient masticatory mechanism, either natural or artificial.

The material of which the denture is made is of comparatively slight consequence.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up to find the threatened snow growing nearer by the hour. For days the weatherman has been predicting it and, sooner or later, he is bound to be right. Much saddened by the inevitable news that Finland had been forced to make a Red peace. About as much honor in that Russian victory as there would be in me fighting a first grader. Joe Stalin really lost that war, though. He proved to the entire world that Russian might is merely might-have-been. From now on no nation with more than a handful of soldiers will fear that northern bear. Why, the New York police force could train it to jump through hoops.

My heart really goes out to the Finns, peace loving folk who wished only to live their own lives, who were forced into a dreadful war, who fought and bled as patriots, who have lost so much because their land was small and their folk so few. I think most Americans feel the same way.

Driving about the ville was almost struck by a youthful motorist who was trying to be much smarter than his years. I wonder if the supplanting of the old fashioned woodshed by the garage is not having considerable effect on the youth of today?

Talked with a comparative new comer in the ville who already had heard the myth of how the Chamber of Commerce strives to keep industry out of town. Did explain to him that I have missed only three Chamber meetings in four years and that for two years I served on the board of directors and that I know of no single instance of the Chamber discouraging new industry. I do, however, know of instances where manufacturers have offered to move here for $40,000 or $50,000 or more. Investigation showed that those plants moved into their present locations after donations from the communities, and having fulfilled their four or five year contract with the villes, were ready to move again for a consideration. Plants of that kind never are beneficial to any community. They seldom remain long enough for a city to get its donation back. In order to kill the vicious rumor against the Chamber I intend offering at the next meeting a motion that the Chamber offer a cash reward of $1,000 to anyone who provides proof that the Chamber has done anything except encourage legitimate manufacturers in selection of Circleville as a site for their plants. Fooey on such idle talk.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

by RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

I, Bill Strickland, am suspected in the murder of my friend, Alfred Markham, rich young jeweler, at a party in the Rio Vista clubhouse. Jerry Montcalm, another friend, although he is engaged to Muriel Benson, the girl I had once hoped to marry, reveals that he, too, is a possible suspect. He tells Captain of Detectives Clyde McDonald it was he who first stumbled over the body in the moonlit garden at the tip of the river peninsula on which the clubhouse stands.

CHAPTER SIX

"NO ONE HAS accused you of killing him," Captain McDonald told Jerry. The officer's face was grim. "But you haven't helped any by letting us think all this time that it was Mr. St. Clair who found the body. What was the first thing you did?"

"I thought he had just fallen and was hurt. I said, 'What's wrong, Al?' He didn't answer me, so I leaned over and touched him. His coat was all—all—"

"Yes?"

"His coat was all sticky with blood." Jerry's face was white as he looked at the rest of us grouped around the piano.

The captain grunted. "That accounts for the blood stains on your trousers. You wiped your hands off on them."

Jerry looked down, startled. "I—I guess I did. I don't remember."

The captain's cigar rolled back across his mouth again. He gave Jerry a fierce look. "So you were afraid to let anyone know you'd found Mr. Markham murdered? Did you arrange for Mr. St. Clair to find the body a few minutes later?"

Jerry swallowed. "Yes. I—I suggested that he take a walk in the garden."

"By himself? What excuse did you use to get him to go out there?"

"When I came back into the clubroom most everyone was crowded around the piano, singing. He said to me, 'It's stuffy in here, Jerry,' and I said, 'Why don't you take a walk in the fresh air out by the river?'"

"As easy as that, eh? And you didn't pick him in particular? You didn't care who found the body, as long as it was not you? You wanted to keep out of the case?"

"That's right. And I watched him from the glass doors so I could testify for him later that he wasn't the murderer."

"All right. That will do. With the exception of you two, and Mr. Strickland, who was upstairs, you were all grouped around the piano as you are now." He turned to me. I was standing at one side. "Mr. Strickland, you were in the garden with Mr. Markham shortly before he died?"

"I was." I tried to keep my voice steady, but failed. Everyone was watching me.

"I understand you were quarreling. About what?"

"It didn't seem very important," I explained. "He wanted to be left alone."

"He raised his voice?"

"He did. He told me to go back into the clubhouse."

"What did you do?"

"Naturally, I went. Jerry Montcalm has told you how he met me at the door, and I went upstairs. He saw Al—standing in the rose arbor."

"I'm not asking you to testify for Mr. Montcalm. Were you a good friend of Mr. Markham's?"

"Very."

A chill gripped my heart. I didn't like the way he looked at me.

"Know any reason anyone might want to kill him?"

"I can't think of any possible reason. I'm sure there was no reason."

The captain's eyebrows shot up. "That would be remarkable, wouldn't it? A murder without reason? How about jealousy? Could he have been planning to meet some young lady in the garden—someone, perhaps, in whom someone else was interested?"

"Al didn't care for women."

"A remarkable young man," said the captain sarcastically. "Well, since you, his best friend, can see no motive we'll have to look further into the psysical evidence. He was stabbed to death with a knife. Do you know of any possible weapon?"

"Not a knife with a blade long enough to kill him."

"How do you know it was a long blade?"

"I—I just assumed so."

"Assumptions are dangerous. As a matter of fact, Mr. Strickland, a well-aimed blow from a pocketknife would have killed him. I hope you find your knife, Mr. Strickland."

A chill gripped my heart. I didn't like the way he looked at me.

Captain McDonald now turned to Muriel, who was seated on the piano stool. "Do you remember what you were playing on the piano, Miss Benson?"

"Yes, it was—"

"Never mind. I'm no musician. I want you to play exactly as you did tonight, starting from the moment Jerry Montcalm came in the door the first time after seeing Mr. Strickland go up the stairs. I want each one of you to do exactly what you did while that music was playing. I want Mr. Strickland to go upstairs. I want Jerry Montcalm to stumble over the 'body' and induce Mr. St. Clair to take a walk in the garden. If all the stories you have told me are true, when the music stops you should be back from the garden, Mr. St. Clair, and at the same moment you, Mr. Strickland, should be at the top of the stairs. No singing, of course," he told those at the piano.

"Are you ready? Miss Benson, begin—very softly, so that neither the ones in the garden nor the one upstairs can time their actions by the music. Perhaps we had better close the doors."

I stepped uneasily into the hall. The coroner, who was coming in through the glass doors, asked me, "What goes on?"

"We are re-enacting the fatal ten minutes for Captain McDonald."

Coroner Silver smiled. "Old-fashioned."

I went upstairs, but I had no intention of following instructions. I knew that I must recover my pocketknife!

It must be lying in the garden, close to the spot where Al had died. Of course there mightn't be blood on it, but I couldn't explain to the officiers how it came to be there—not until the mystery of Al's behavior was cleared up. And suppose blood had fallen on it?

If the knife were found by one of the investigators . . .!

I had about ten minutes before I must return downstairs. The proper moment for my return could be determined by watching St.Clair. In the meantime I must find some way to get down into the garden, and back again.

Union Guild Session

Twenty members answered roll call with short Easter readings Wednesday when the Union Guild met at the home of Mrs. Minnie Cupp and Mrs. Paul Counts of Wayne Township. Three guests were present.

Mrs. Roy Rittinger, president, conducted the business meeting which opened with group singing of hymns. Miss Bertha Jones read the Easter message for the scripture lesson.

Mrs. Rittinger presented an interesting talk concerning Easter customs and described the origin of the use of the egg, rabbit, colored eggs, flowers, cross and other symbols in its observance.

Mrs. Olaf Thorne, secretary-treasurer, made her report.

Several appropriate readings comprised the program, "Springtime in the Soul," Mrs. Harry Cupp; "The Old Road to Church", Mrs. Roy Rittinger; "What Does Easter Mean to You", Mrs. Sherman Campbell; "Easter Morning", Mrs. Oliver Tharp; "A Lady Buys Her Easter Bonnett", Mrs. Paul Counts and "What Easter Means", Mrs. Lee Winks.

A true and false contest won by Miss Bertha Jones and another contest with Mrs. Lawrence Goodman winning, comprised the entertainment of the social hour.

The program committee for the next session includes Mrs. Sherman Campbell, Mrs. Paul Counts and Mrs. Harry Cupp.

The next meeting, April 10, will be at the home of Mrs. Leo Hodgson, Jackson Township, with Mrs. Herbert Thomas of the same community assisting.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Peach Meringue—Cut two pieces of sponge cake, about two and one-half inches square and one-half inch thick, and place on dessert plates that will stand heat. Put one-half stewed peach or pear on top of each piece of cake, then cover peach with meringue made of one egg white, beaten still with one teaspoon sugar. Put in slow oven long enough to brown the meringue and serve hot.

Today's Garden-Graph

Planting Asparagus Crowns

When purchasing asparagus for planting purposes, select strong two-year-old crowns. Mary Washington is an excellent variety and gus, named Paradise, is also a rust-resistant variety and is a heavy producer. Do not permit the crowns to dry out before planting, for if they do they are almost certain to die.

As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the planting bed should be two inches higher in the center than on the sides, in order that the crowns, when planted, will be well above the roots. The long, thong-like roots should be spread out when planted, as illustrated. The crows should be set some six inches below the surface soil. Cover the crowns with only two to three inches of soil at first; fill up the trench with soil as the plant's shoots grow upwards. This gradual filling in of the trench with soil is done to keep the roots of the asparagus from being smothered before the plant is well established.

The plants should be set from twelve to eighteen inches apart along the row. The rows should be three feet apart. Stalks should not be cut from the plant during the first year, and only a few from it during the second year. Full harvesting can begin the third year after planting.

LOUIS, GALENTO MAY BATTLE FOR G. O. P. LEADERS

PHILADELPHIA, March 14—A championship heavyweight fight between Joe Louis and Tony Galento during the Republican national convention sessions in Philadelphia was envisioned today in wake of reports that the Brown Bomber has been guaranteed $100,000 for such a meeting.

A group of wealthy Phliadelphians, who remained anonymous, was said to have offered to back the fight with the guarantee and to have proposed June 24, opening date of the convention, as the time for the set-to.

Louis, who defeated Galento in a rousing battle in New York last year, made his first and only appearance in Philadelphia several years ago when he knocked out Al Ettore, Philadelphia heavyweight.

FENSKE TO PARTICIPATE IN ARMOUR TECH RELAYS

CHICAGO, March 14 — Shooting for a new world's record indoor record in the three-quarter mile, Chuck Fenske of Wisconsin will run in the featured race of the 12th annual Armour Tech relays here Saturday afternoon, it was announced today.

The present record for the three-quarter mile distance, 3 minutes, 3.4 seconds, was set by Lloyd Hahn in New York in 1925. Pacers for Fenske in the Saturday race have not yet been announced.

GRISSOM DOES WELL IN NEW YORK LIVERY

STATE'S CAGERS BEGIN TOURNEY ON TWO COURTS

Bellefontaine, Massillon Vie At Fairgrounds; Willshire And Marysville Tangle

COLUMBUS, March 14—Primed for strenuous action, 32 Ohio high school basketball teams seeking the Class A and Class B state titles were to open hostilities today.

Promptly at 1 p. m., officials were to issue the "open fire" order in the Fairgrounds Coliseum and the Ohio State University gymnasium. The inaugural Class A fracas pitted Bellefontaine against Massillon. The initial B tilt featured Willshire and Marysville.

Saturday night, two quintets will have slid down to the end of the basketball rainbow. The final communique will list two title hoders to fill the pennant niches vacated by Akron North and North Canton, eliminated in district fighting.

Unsettled weather in some portions of the state made it appear as if there may be a decided slump in anticipated attendance. But this fact failed to lessen the enthusiasm displayed by competitors.

Youngsters Ready

The youthful contestants, in excellent condition following vigorous combat for the past three months, were eager and impatient for battle.

The Class A favorites, New Philadelphia, Canton McKinley and Cincinnati Woodward were confident. As was Smithfield, top choice in the Class B flag chase.

Firse round pairings: Class A—Bellefontaine vs. Massillon; Defiance vs. Akron Buchtel; Martins Ferry vs. Canton McKinley; Marietta vs. Findlay; Cincinnati Woodward vs. Canton Lehman; Toledo Waite vs. Dayton Fairview; Columbus Central vs. Akron South; Bellevue vs. New Philadelphia.

Class B—Willshire vs. Marysville; New Carlisle vs. Waynesburg; Smithfield vs. Germantown; Bluffton vs. Midvale; Glenford vs. Rittman; Amanda vs. Sandusky St. Marys; Canfield vs. Hanover; Holgate vs. Kitts Hill.

Very few fives availed themselves of the opportunity to arrive in Columbus early and engage in a practice session. For instance, yesterday afternoon only Smithfield, Class B favorite, Hanover and Canfield were seen on the Class B. floor in Ohio State's gymnasium.

Regardless of the outcome of the tournament; regardless of who wins and wears the A and B crowns, the most prevalent though was—this state cage tourney, with all its coolr and trappings, has rightfully earned the name of "Ohio's greatest sports classic."

LEONARD AIDS PAYCHEK

WARNER RITES TO BE CONDUCTED SATURDAY; THREE OTHERS INJURED

COUNTY NATIVE KILLED AS CAR AND TRUCK HIT

Highway Near Warsaw, Ind. Scene Of Wednesday Tragedy

While funeral arrangements were being completed Thursday for Mrs. Dora A. Warner, 56, wife of Lawrence Warner, 490 East Main Street, three other persons injured in the wreck that was fatal to Mrs. Warner remained in the Warsaw, Ind., hospital for treatment of injuries. They were Mrs. Florence Leist and her son, Earl W., of Washington Township, and the Rev. J. Paul Jones, 48, pastor of the Columbus Miller Avenue Evangelical Church.

The Rev. Mr. Jones is suffering from head injuries and a broken arm. Earl Leist, advices from Warsaw said, has an eye injury, and his mother is painfully bruised.

The wreck happened Wednesday when the party of four was returning to Circleville after a trip to Naperville, Illinois. Earl Leist had gone there to enroll in the Evangelical Theological Seminary, planning to enter next September. Mrs. Warner had stopped in Naperville with a sister, Mrs. Ida Compton.

Car Skids Into Truck

The tragedy happened, Indiana reports said, when the Leist car skidded into a truck on an ice-covered highway.

Mrs. Warner was born in Washington Township May 5, 1883, a daughter of Eli A. and Leah Hitchcock Leist. She married Lawrence Warner in Stoutsville October 20, 1904, and is survived by her husband; two sons Melvin and Oakley and a daughter, Mrs. Leola Storts; two brothers, Albert C. of Cedar Hill and Ottis R. of Pickaway Township; three sisters, Mrs. Ida Compton of Naperville, Mrs. Emma Fetherolf of Stoutsville and Miss Rose Leist of Stoutsville.

She was a member of the St. Paul Evangelical Church, Washington Township and an active worker in the Pickaway County W.C.T.U. organization.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p. m. in the St. Paul Church, burial to be in Forest Cemetery, Circleville, by M. S. Rinehart. Friends may view the body at the Warner home after 6 p. m. Thursday.

Two veterans of the Spanish-American War were elected as trustees. Fred Donnelly was elected for the one year term and William Watts for the two year term.

Following the regular meeting of the association, a meeting of the trustees was called. William Betts, jr., was given the office of president of the board of trustees; William Watts was elected vice president. The trustees selected E. A. Boar Causes Excitement For Citizens And Police

If anyone was fit to be hog-tied today it was the boar that was raising havoc out on North Court Street at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Everyone up at that end of town was going about his daily business when the boar hog burst on the scene. No one knew where he came from, but there he was really leading everyone that saw him a merry chase. He wasn't a greased pig, but his captors can testify that he was plenty slippery.

C. C. Strawser, Robert Brehmer and William Green chased him out of one yard into another. He tore up shrubbery and anything that could be torn up as he romped across the lawns with his captors in hot pursuit.

Panting but undaunted the men chased him up the driveway at 712 North Court Street. That was when the 300 oounder made the first mistake. Maybe he planned to fight to the finish with his back against a wall, but Strawser thought just a little faster. As the boar dashed into the garage behind the home of Dr. Robert Hedges, Strawser followed him in.

As the boar feinted a lunge at Strawser, he stepped out of the garage and locked the doors. And that was that. At least that was what Strawser thought.

After resting for about a half hour, the hog leaned that 300 pounds against the garage door and snapped the latch. Then he was off on the loose again tearing up the lawns.

Such disregard for law and order brought the police into the game of "catch if catch can." Armed with bludgeons and clubs, the police went calling on the rampaging rascal. Up and down North Court Street the chase was renewed.

At 3:30 p. m. the boar threw up the sponge and the police claimed a technical knockout. He was taken to the stock pens down near the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks where he was reported resting quietly Thursday.

The police made a check, but no one claims the prodigal pig, so if no one comes to take home the bacon he will be sold.

"He sure was a mean one," Strawser said. "Frothing at the mouth, shaking his head, sneering at us. But the police caught up with him and that's that."

A program of retrenchment and replanting is under way at the north end now that hostilities have ceased.

California now has a frog hospital. The medical staff there, no doubt, must keep on the jump.

New Deal Slate May Include Vic

Washington Hints That Roosevelt's Backers Will Invite Ohioan

WASHINGTON, March 14 — A new third term ticket, with Senator Vic Donahey, of Ohio, cast as the running mate of President Roosevelt, was talked about in New Deal circles today.

A member of the White House "inner circle" is reported to have sounded out Donahey recently on his availability for the second place nomination if Mr. Roosevelt is drafted by the Democratic convention in July. Donahey is said to have withheld any commitment one way or the other.

When queried about this report, Donahey withheld comment.

The Roosevelt-Donahey ticket was suggested by some New Dealers after earlier efforts to promote Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, for the post failed to win his assent. Wheeler is said to have dismissed the "feeler" by declaring he did not believe the President would be a candidate for a third term and asserting his interviewer was speaking without presidential knowledge.

The Donahey rumor meanwhile indicates the New Deal's "inner circle" is confident of drafting Mr. Roosevelt. They have started out in the first Democratic preferential primary by lining up New Hampshire's eight convention votes for a third term. The New Hampshire Democrats will have to vote for Mr. Roosevelt, under local law, until he releases them.

Choice Not Surprise

Choice of Donahey as the President's running-mate, if there is a third term ticket, would not be surprising. The senator, a veteran liberal, has been on the warmest personal relations with the President. He comes from a pivotal state that has bobbed back and forth between the Republican and Democratic columns. He has proven many times that he is the most popular vote-getter among Ohio Democrats, having been elected governor three times and senator once. The last time he carried every congressional district in the state.

Donahey has always had strong followings among farmers and union workers. He always won many Republican voters to his standard. He will be 67 in July, but Vice President John N. Gar-

DAYTON, March 14—Three high school pupils were dead today and two others were reported in serious condition after the auto in which they were riding crashed into a parked truck at nearby Alpha.

The dead were John Humphrey, 18; Hugh Marshall, 17 and Betty Thompson, 17. Injured were Donald Lutz, 18 and Mary Margaret Fehey, 14.

Coroner H. C. Schick of Xenia said the driver of the truck, which was parked at the top a hill, tried in vain to flag the death car with a flashlight. Marshall was driving. All five were residents of Beaver Creek Township and had been enrolled in the rural school there.

SCHOOL FIGHT IN HIGH COURT

Attorneys For Muhlenberg And County Board Argue Motion For Review

The legal battle over the proposed transfer of the Muhlenberg school district to the centralized school in Monroe Township, Pickaway County, reached the State Supreme Court today as counsel for both sides presented their arguments on whether the high tribunal should review the case. The supreme court took the arguments under advisement.

Tom Renick, attorney for the board of education of the Muhlenberg centralized school district, plaintiff in the original action, asserted before the court that the Pickaway County board of education did not have the power under Ohio law to transfer one centralized school district to another.

(In the original action, the board sought to enjoin the county board from effecting the transfer. The case was lost by the plaintiff in common pleas court, but the court of appeals later reversed the decision, and the county board then filed for review in the supreme court.)

Charles Gerhardt, counsel for the Pickaway board of education, argued before the court that Ohio law did give the school officials power to make the transfer.

Following conclusion of his argument, Gerhardt said that the board passed a resolution ordering the transfer on the recommendation of E. N. Dietrich, state director of education.

Seven Convicts Listed After Henderson Nips Hostage Grab Idea

A young criminal sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary last June 13 by Judge Meeker Terwilliger to serve 10 to 25 years for armed robbery of the George Adkins filling station on the Jackson Pike was linked Thursday by Warden Frank D. Henderson of the penitentiary as one of seven desperate convicts who attempted to escape in a plot described by Henderson as "fantastic, hair-brained, melodramatic and suicidal."

Named by Warden Henderson was Cecil (Red) Martin, 24, of Columbus, arrested after an investigation that resulted in his plea of guilty to the robbery charges. Arrested with Martin was Raymond Taylor, another Columbus youth with a reformatory record.

Plot Described

The warden made public for the first time the bizarre escape plot which was broken up March 4, a few hours before it was to have been culminated.

The escape layout, according to Henderson, was plotted by Frank Benzowski, 33, Cuyahoga County, serving a 10-20 year robbery sentence. Benzowski, and these accomplices are in the block set aside for incorrigibles:

Walter Szafranski, 25, second degree murder lifer from Cuyahoga County; Martin; John Gleeton, 38, serving an automobile theft term from Hamilton County; Leroy Keith, 26, second degree murder lifer from Trumbull County; Vernon Taylor, Union County bank robber serving life; Russell Clark, 41, reputed to be the last of the Dillinger gang, serving life for first degree murder committed in Allen County in 1934.

To Dress As Runners

Tracing details of the plot, the warden declared that on the morning of March 5, Benzowski, Szafranski, Martin and Gleeton, disguised as prison runners, were to enter the Protestant chapel

CLOTURE ANGLE CONSIDERED FOR LYNCHING BILL

WASHINGTON, March 14 — Senate backers of anti-lynching legislation said today they will try to invoke the drastic expedient of cloture to bring a vote on the measure.

Senator Wagner (D) New York, co-author of the anti-lynching bill, which will be formally reported to the full senate judiciary committee next Monday said:

"We intend to pass this legislation at this session of congress, and we will try to invoke cloture if we run into a filibuster against it."

To invoke cloture — limitation of debate—two-thirds of the senate must assent.

The anti-lynching bill commands sufficient votes to pass, once it reaches a final vote, but southern members were lined up solidly to filibuster against such a vote.

HAIRCUT PRICE OUTLAWED

COLUMBUS, March 14—Officials of the local barbers' union today announced that they would appeal from the ruling of Common Pleas Judge John R. King, which outlawed a Columbus council ordinance setting up a minimum price of 50 cents for haircuts and 25 cents for shaves.

Strategic City Which Finns Give to Russia; Two of Peace Signers

View of Viipuri showing harbor facilities

RUSSO-FINNISH peace terms hold the interest of the world. The important, but now shell-wrecked city of Viipuri, once Finland's third largest city, together with the islands in its bay, goes to Russia as one of the most important provisions of the terms. Premier Vyacheslaff M. Molotov, chairman of the council of the people's commissars of the U. S. S. R., and Juho Paasikivi, Finnish minister, were among those who signed the peace treaty. The treaty was ratified by the Finnish Diet.

NEARLY HALF MILLION FINNS HOMELESS AND DESTITUTE AS RESULT OF WARFARE

HELSINKI, March 14—With the guns stilled but the bitterness and sorrow unabated, war-ravaged Finland surveyed the cost of its losing battle today as authorities estimated some 400,000 persons were homeless and destitute as a result of the Russo-Finnish conflict.

In the whittled-down domain left by the Moscow peace treaty, the nation began making reconstruction plans after Finland's cammander-in-chief, Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustav Mannerheim, paid farewell to his troops and praised their courage, but bitterly denounced Scandinavia's hindurance of outside aid.

Amid the desolation of the bomb and flame wrecked cities, the 15,000 Finnish soldiers killed and the other thousands wounded, Finland saw one faint gleam of hope for the future.

This was an announcement by Foreign Minister Vaino A. Tanner that Norway, Sweden and Finland had agreed, before the Finnish delegation went to Moscow to sue for peace, to undertake mutual conversations with the object of guaranteeing their frontiers.

These talks, said Tanner, will be continued in a few days. He stressed that they had been initiated by Finland.

Pressure Denied

Tanner also denied that the Anglo-French Allies had brought pressure to bear on Finland either before or during the war. He declared both British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and French Premier Edouard Daladier plainly stated Finland must reach her own conclusions on the question of requesting outside aid against Russia.

(A Reuters dispatch from Oslo said that the Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht stated Norway replied affirmatively two days ago in response to inquries as to whether it was prepared to consider the possibility of establishing a defensive alliance among Norway, Sweden and Finland.

(Another Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said there was no confirmation in the Swedish capital that such negotiations already have begun.)

(The London Daily Express published what was construed as a Russian warning against any regional pact among Finland, Sweden and Norway. A Leningrad spokesman was quoted as stating: ("Russia has offered her hand to Finland and expects Finland to keep out of associations which would be considered a dangerous conspiracy against the Soviet Union. Such a violation of the new (peace) agreement would have serious consequences.")

Informed Scandinavian circles, meanwhile, doubted that the proposed agreement among Finland, Sweden and Norway would be concluded, particularly in view of Norwegian opposition and the fact that such a pact is prohibited under terms of the Russo-Finnish peace agreement.

It was considered possible, however, that some sort of "silent gentlemen's agreement" between Sweden and Finland might be worked out later on.

With the peace delegates back from Moscow, it was expected the government headed by Premier Risto Ryti would resign shortly, giving way to a provisional government.

Under this regime, it was anticipated, the final formalities of peace and resumption of diplomatic relations with Russia would be carried out. Thereafter a new permanent cabinet would be formed.

No serious crisis was expected, as both military and political leaders are said to agree that peace with Russia was Finland's only course.

It was disclosed the hostilities continued right to the moment that the armistice took effect at 11 a. m. yesterday, but Finnish circles denied the Russian claim that Viborg (Viipuri) was occupied by a storming attack. Yesterday morning Russian airmen dropped the final bombs of the war on Rovaniemi and Kemijaervi, wounding three civilians.

A government proclamation said peace was made with Russia "in full realization that the people would be saved a greater misfortune." It added:

"Through the sacrifice of our youth we are able to maintain the most valuable things we possess —freedom and national honor— and we have thus earned the right to rehabilitation on those terms."

In his final order of the day, Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim paid tribute to the 15,000 slain Finnish troops and said only two battalions of foreign volunteers reached Finland in time to join the fight.

Mannerheim pictured Finland as one of the last barriers in Europe against Bolshevism and said:

"We are proudly conscious of our historic duty to continue the defense of western civilization, our heritage for centuries.

"But we also know that he have

Indian Gunman Shoots British Punjab Envoy

LONDON, March 14—Mohamed Singh Azad, the Indian gunman who yesterday assassinated Sir Michael O'Dwyer, lieutenant governor of Punjab during the Amritzar massacre of 1919, was charged formally with murder today.

The Indian was brought into Bow Street police court under a heavy guard and the murder charge was lodged. Azad then was remanded in custody for a week.

Bullets fired by the gunman when he felled Sir Michael also wounded the Marquess of Zetland, secretary of state for India, Sir Louis Dane and Maron Lamington, former governor of Bombay.

(At Calcutta the newspaper Star of India termed the assassination a "dastardly deed" and added:

("However bitter India might have felt against Sir Michael, she hangs her head in shame as no one wished his death.")

Azad, who appeared unaware of the seriousness of his position as he stood in the courtroom, denied that he had intended to kill the former lieutenant governor, who was one of England's most famous authorities on Indian affairs.

"I didn't mean to kill him," Azad told the court. "I just did it to protest. I didn't mean to kill anybody."

Late last night the Indian in a statement to police said that his

INQUIRY LOOMS INTO SALES OF WAR EQUIPMENT

WASHINGTON, March 14 — Searching investigation of U. S. airplane and munitions sales to the Allies was virtually assured today as demand for an inquiry grew in both senate and house.

Despite vehement administration denials, widespread fears were voiced by members of congress that American military secrets are being divulged to the Allies and the American rearmament program hampered.

A report that the army has released an anti-aircraft detector for foreign sales was received by members of a senate group. A member of the same group expressed fear that the carefully guarded army anti-aircraft firing invention has been disclosed.

ELEVATOR FALLS, HURTS CINCINNATI SALESMAN

CINCINNATI, March 14—Trapped in an elevator that plummeted two stories when its supporting cable broke, Vincent Klein, 40-year-old salesman, was in serious condition in Good Samaritan Hospital today. Klein was nearly drowned by water from a pipe broken by the fall before rescuers reached him.

DIES UNCOVERS EVIDENCE THAT REDS ARE BUSY

WASHINGTON, March 14 — The Dies committee has uncovered evidence which it believes will reveal working of a Soviet Russian military police in the United States, it was disclosed today as Chairman Martin Dies (D) Texas, of the committee, returned to Washington.

Dies, who went to Florida on advice of his physician, cut short his trip to return here for final investigations preparatory to hearings on the spy case.

While refusing to disclose details Dies asserted that the committee will call one of the chief operatives in the Soviet spy system as a witness.

"There is no doubt about activities of Communist secret agents," said Dies.

The committee has received information, it was reliably reported, that the wife of a Soviet Russian agent was formerly employed in the office of a cabinet member in Washington.

Dies also announced that the committee will shortly open inquiry into certain consumers organizations on the basis of a report of Communist infiltration and control of many of them.

Huge Import-Export Bank Credit Not Affected By End Of War

WASHINGTON, March 14— Finland appealed to the American people today to aid her in binding up the wounds of war.

The request for continuation of the financial help that the United States public has been sending to Helsinki since the Russian invasion was made by Finnish Minister Hjalmar Procope. It came only a few hours after President Roosevelt publicly condemned Soviet Russia's victory by overwhelming force and said the hard-fighting Finns had "increased the respect and warm regard" in which they are held in America.

Procope, though bowed in spirit by his country's military defeat, nevertheless declared that Finland "would continue to fulfill her duty amongst other free peoples.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Finnish relief fund headed by Herbert Hoover will continue its activities in behalf of the war-ravaged civilian population. The "Fighting Funds for Finland, Inc.," headed by Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan will hold itself in readiness for the time being in case some hitch arises as a result of the peace negotiations with Russia. O'Ryan's organization was gathering funds for arms for Finland. Sports benefits for the Finns also will continue with the all-star baseball game being played Sunday in Tampa, Fla., and various track meets also going on as scheduled.)

"Finland," the minister said in a prepared statement, "has been fighting against overwhelming odds. She has shown that a small nation can resist an agression and can do her duty in defense of the highest ideals of mankind. She has fought alone—and finally she has been forced to make peace.

"The peace is hard, but Finland

FREDDIE BRUNGS BREAKS HIS PAROLE FOURTH TIME

Police authorities took Fred Brungs, 27, South Pickaway Street, in custody at 1:45 a. m. Thursday and turned him over to state authorities who returned him to the Ohio Penitentiary in Columbus for the fourth violation of his parole.

Originally sentenced five years ago on a burglary charge, Brungs was sent to the reformatory at Mansfield. He was paroled recently and the present violation requires him to finish the remainder of his sentence at the penitentiary. He no longer is eligible for further parole.

His present parole violation is based on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND

CINCINNATI, March 14—Clad in a riding habit, the body of a woman identified as Mrs. Beatrice Nieder, 38, was found today beneath a railroad bridge in suburban Carthage. Mrs. Nieder had appeared at a riding academy late yesterday but left when no horse was available. Her husband is George Nieder, sales manager for a chemical firm.

EXAMINERS LAUD COUNTY SHERIFF FOR FOOD COSTS

Report Says Radcliff Could Be Spending Much More Than 51 Cents Daily

TOP EXPENSE 75 CENTS

Accommodation For Federal Prisoners Discussed By Official

An examination of the office of Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff, conducted by state examiners for the period from April 1, 1938 to September 5, 1939, resulted in commendation for the sheriff for the conduct of his department.

The commendation came for the branch of the office that is nearest the taxpayer's pocketbook, that concerning meals to prisoners, this figure being probably the most important single item in the office's operation.

The report declared:

"Sheriff Radcliff feeds the Pickaway County prisoners under the provisions of Section 2850 G. C. He purchased the necessary food supplies and prepared the meals at an average price per day of 51.55 cents during the period covered by this audit. The law provides that the cost of feeding the prisoners shall not exceed 75 cents per day.

"Sheriff Radcliff deserves commendation for keeping this cost down to a figure far below what the law specifies as the maximum."

After briefly discussing the various functions of the office the report finds also that the county has about $180.75 due from the federal government for keeping prisoners in the county jail under a contract. The finding covers prisoners in transit who have been permitted to remain in the county cells overnight awaiting transfer to another city the next morning. Sheriff Radcliff pointed out that he believed overnight care in the couty jail could be considered as accommodation only and that he had made no charge for such keeping.

He pointed out that many times when he was transferring prisoners from one city to another that he had kept them in various city jails overnight and had never been asked to pay for their keep.

"Under our contract with the government," he said, "a charge can be made only when a commitment paper is produced. In these "accommodation" confinements there was no commitment paper so I didn't charge for it."

Many of the federal prisoners kept in the county jail for which the examiners say there should have been a charge were put there when Bryan Custer, former deputy, was serving as Deputy U. S. Marshal. Custer, making a long trip with a prisoner, would often arrive in Circleville late at night and house his prisoner in the local jail until the next morning.

LOHR UP FOR PAROLE

Fred Lohr, admitted to the Ohio penitentiary from Pickaway County in May, 1939, on a non-support charge, will be eligible for a parole hearing after May 1. He is now serving a one to three year term at the London Prison farm.

"Three Cheers For The Irish"

THERE will be laughs aplenty Sunday at the Grand Theatre when Peter Casey and his family take over the screen in the new picture, "Three Cheers for the Irish." Thomas Mitchell plays the part of Peter Casey and his three lovely daughters are portrayed by Priscilla Lane, Virginia Gray and Irene Hervey. Dennis Morgan plays the romantic male lead.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

The man, woman or child who cannot thoroughly enjoy every minute of "Young Tom Edison," which opens Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre for an engagement of three days, is not human and never was young.

Here is a picture which a reviewer can recommend without fear of contradiction. It is a beautifully human story of a boy—of any generation and any walk of life—who triumphs against the stigma of being considered strange. It has everything—comedy, adventure, thrills, tears, human interest and family love.

As Tom Edison, Mickey Rooney shows his right to the claim of being an actor. He is ideally cast and has never been more lovable, not even as Andy Hardy. As his sister, Virginia Weidler, has a role that definitely makes her a star. Fay Bainter and George Bancroft, as Edison's parents, will be remembered as long as motion pictures endure.

4,000,000 MASKS WASTED

LONDON—Over 4,000,000 gasmasks have been wasted owing to bad distribution, according to a report issued by Sir Gilbert Upcott, Comptroller and Auditor-General of the Exchequer and Audit Department. Nearly 45 million respirators were needed for the population and testing purposes the report reveals, but over 50,000,000 had been issued.

We Americans are lucky devils, with nothing to fight about but politics, which is our favorite sport anyway.

COLUMBUS' GAS RATE FIGHT AT END OF STRING?

COLUMBUS March, 14—Settlement of the 15-year-old Columbus gas rate fight appeared imminent today as council planned to meet with gas company officials to discuss a proposed new 61-cent rate.

The new company offer also included an increase in refund to $1,292,165. Company officials said that the average refund for the years 1925, 1926 and 1927, when the money was impounded, would be approximately $18.38 per customer.

The present average paid by consumers is 56.22 cents per thousand cubic feet. Monday night council unanimously rejected a 63.76-cent rate proposed by the company.

CHECK 'ARTIST' HUNTED BY ROSS COUNTY NABBED

CHILLICOTHE, March 14—A smile of relief came over the face of Police Chief Russell Poole when information was received that R. W. Watson, alias R. W. Ward plus a string of half a hundred other phoney names, who used the mythical name of "The Milner Corporation of Chillicothe" as a firm on which to draw checks, had been arrested by the Indiana State Police.

Explaining the "myth" to hundreds of victims all over the nation who cashed checks for Watson did "business" with the bogus corporation kept the Chillicothe Police and the Citizens National Bank pretty busy as the checks kept turning up.

A woman who said her name was "Iris Walters", Cincinnati, was caught with Watson by the police near Indianapolis. That he had collected between $15,000 to $20,000 on the bogus checks was the boast that Watson had made to the police. This boast, officials say, is modest.

Watson served five years as a ward in Michigan State Prison, 13 years in the Iowa State Prison and the Federal authorities hold a fugitive warrant for him for the robbery of a bank in 1939, the records reveal.

YOUNG CONFEDERATE

The story of Sam Davis, 21-year-old Confederate spy, who chose death on the gallows rather than betray his superior officer, will be the subject of a Cavalcade of America air dramatization, Tuesday evening, March 19. Elliott Reid, youthful stage and radio actor, will be heard in the role of Davis.

The Cavalcade radio drama is based on a tale from Marquis James' colorful collection of historical sketches, "They Had Their Hour". The episode to be broadcast occurred in November 1863, when the armies of the North and South were at close grips in Tennessee. Nashville had surrendered to Union forces, but the southern General Braxton Bragg still held Cattanooga. Union defense plans for Nashville had fallen into the possession of Chief Captain Coleman of the Confederate Intelligence Service. To got them through Yankee lines to General Bragg in Chattanooga was of primary importance.

Because of his boyish looks, Sam Davis was selected as the scout most likely to pass through Union lines. The circumstances of his failure, his capture and his heroic loyalty to Coleman is one of the almost forgotten, but highly dramatic stories of the period.

BRENT AND FRANCIS

The third successive four star production in the Radio Theatre is "The Rains Came" which features George Brent, Kay Francis, Jean Parker, and Jim Ameche on Monday, March 18. Cecil B. DeMille, the producer, seems determined to outdo himself in strong casts for the presentation regularly heard over the Columbia network at 9 p. m.

Based on the screenplay that was taken from Louis Bromfield's successful novel on India, "The Rains Came" will have George Brent in the role of Tom Ransome which he played in the picture. Tom is a London wastrel fascinated with life in India because his friendship with Major Safti (Jim Ameche), well-known Indian surgeon, permits him to move about in the highest society of the land.

Tom is invited to a party where he meets Fern Simon, (Jean Parker), rebellious daughter of a missionary. The arrival of Lord and Lady Esketh at the Maharajah's palace causes Ransome to leave Fern much sooner than he desires. He remembers Lady Esketh as one of his old amours and expects trouble.

Lady Esketh is fascinated with Major Safti who at ffrst hardly notices her. But the torrential rains change all that with dramatic suddenness.

Party Bigwigs Will Be On Hand For Conference In Columbus

COLUMBUS, March 14 — Republicans of Ohio will meet in Columbus Wednesday, April 3 for a review of party accomplishments and a preview of Republican policies during and after the 1940 campaign.

Meeting in Columbus January 31, the Republican State Committee recommended that such a party roll-call be held between the candidates' filing deadline, March 15, and the primaries, May 14. Pursuant to this decision, State Chairman Ed D. Schorr today announced afternoon and evening sessions at the Columbus Auditorium, April 3.

Senator Robert A. Taft, Ohio's Republican presidential candidate, has advised Chairman Schorr that he will attend both sessions.

Governor John W. Bricker, who filed petitions Wednesday for renomination, will mingle with visiting delegations at the auditorium.

Members of the Ohio Republican group in congress have accepted invitations contingent on their duties in Washington. Through Senator Taft they have asked Representatives Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, Republican floor leader in the national house of representatives, to join the trek to Columbus.

Martin May Speak

Conditional on his ability to leave his legislative duties in Washington, Congressman Martin will be the principal speaker at the afternoon session which will begin at 2 o'clock.

Republican members of the Ohio Supreme Court, the governor's cabinet, the Ohio senate and house are expected at the rally.

Republican city and county officials throughout Ohio will be invited.

In the evening, special entertainment will precede addresses by Senator Taft and Governor Bricker on national and state issues.

Bands, singers and musical specialties will be interspersed, afternoon and evening.

Governor Bricker, Lieutenant Governor Paul M. Herbert, Secretary of State Earl Griffith, Treasurer of State Don H. Ebright and Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert will hold "open house" at their offices in the capitol on the morning of April 3. State officials other than Governor Bricker will be heard at the afternoon session.

Senator Taft will hold a reception at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel, the morning of April 3, and will entertain Ohio's 52 endorsed delegates to the Republican national convention at dinner that evening, with Mrs. Taft assisting.

Governor Bricker and Mrs. Bricker will entertain members of the Republican State Committee at the executive mansion Tuesday evening, April 2.

Delegations Determined

Republican county chairmen and chairwomen throughout Ohio will be authorized to issue tickets of admission to Columbus Auditorium on a basis of the county votes for Governor Bricker at the 1938 election. Delegations will be assigned to specific reservations in the hall.

State Chairman Schorr, who will preside at the April 3 "review-preview," stressed the importance of the meeting as an occasion for "taking stock and laying the groundwork for the 1940 campaign."

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

THE PRICE OF PRIDE

National income for 1939 has just been estimated by the Department of Commerce at $68,500,000,000. This is the second-best year since Mr. Roosevelt became President. Despite the fact that it is still some fourteen billions under 1929, it has justified considerable optimism.

It seems almost ungracious therefore even to point out some underlying facts. But these facts will demand to be heard sooner or later. One, of course, is that a part of this prosperity—in aircraft, and national defense, for example—depends upon war, which always destroys more prosperity than it creates. Another fact is that we ought to be more disturbed over an unbalanced budget when business is reasonably good than when it is bad. If we can't pay our bills in good times, when can we?

PETTENGILL

The materials for a real prosperity are at hand and the recipe is known.

First, as to the material:

Bank deposits are the largest in the history of the United States. They exceed $57 billion. They are looking for jobs. People hesitate to take the responsibility of giving them jobs. Why?

Another new all-time record has been made by money. It is with reference to velocity of circulation, the way we measure how fast dollars move around. Velocity of circultaion today is like molasses is March. In New York City banks it is only 29 percent of the 1919-1925 average, lower than for any month for which records exist. In banks outside New York City, velocity is also at a new low point. The rate of turnover of money for the entire nation has steadily declined since 1928, ten years ago, and has done so without interruption except for brief periods in 1936 and 1937.

Here we have two all-time, all-American records—both bad. If conditions were such that confidence in future business existed, the potentiality of good from these figures is smply staggering. These $57 billion idle dollars are enough to pay wages to these 8,000,000 idle men, at $1,000 a year each, without stopping, until April 1947, seven years and one month from now.

And because these $57 billion aren't hard at work we continue with the alternative of $3 billion a year of new government debt, and a crushing tax load, to finance WPA and other substitutes for prosperity.

"'Tis pride that pulls the country down". Some day these 8,000,000 idle men may realize that it is the stubborn pride of their own government which stands between them and a decent job in private employment. Some day they will say to themselves, "If these dollars were busy, I'd have a job." And they are going to growl, "Who's stopping them?" That will be a good time to stand from under. Some of them must have asked this question in the 17th Ohio Congressional District the other day. And I'm not suggesting that any one vote for any particular party. But it is necessary to vote for men of both parties who want business to do business and are neither Socialists nor so high and mighty that nobody can tell them anything. Plenty of Democratic Congressmen have fought as hard and braver than Republicans against this creeping paralysis of collectivism.

The answers to the question why we have idle men and idle money are now pretty well known. One is NLRB, Another is SEC, and a hundred other bureaus bossing business and investors around. Another is high and higher taxes. Another is the unbalanced budget and what it may lead to. Another is the kind of Supreme Court we now have. Another is the question mark about a third term—how business would hum if that question were answered the right way! Another is the constant stream of new rules and regulations so that, as a great judge—Benjamin Cardozo—said, "Men are viewed as malefactors for failure to consent to the unknown and the unknowable".

Two or three years ago Mr. Roosevelt told Congress that the new government machine might need to have a nut tightened here and loosened there. And perhaps a little oil of humility in the joints. But did he mean it? Can you get a single nut loosened except after a terrific fight between Congress and the President? No, sir. "We must not let the people down"!

ASHVILLE

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

For the last several days we've neglected getting over to the grain elevators where the neighborhood farmers have almost daily, tons of feed prepared for their farm animals and poultry. From one-half to a dozen different ingredients go into a single batch of poultry feed. More and better eggs is the claim. Up to this time no mail shipments of chicks have arrived at the local postoffice. The nearby Hedges' Leghorn farm with its incubator now in operation, turns out a new lot of chicks each week.

—Ashville—

Since we have a county-office-seeking-candidate right here in the village in the person of Clyde Brinker, headquarters' daily viistors are making a list and trying to name all those who in the last fifty years have held a county office from this community. We'll make a report on this later, when once the list is completed.

—Ashville—

For this, that and other reasons the local Odd Fellow's Lodge has gradually drifted into one of those "inocuous desuetudes" Grover Cleveland used to tell us about when things weren't going so good. But Tuesday evening about twenty of the I. O. O. F. boys from one of the live Columbus lodges paid a visit to the few remaining members here at the lodge room and as a result of this visit an effort will be made to increase the present membership with a hope of bringing the organization back to where it once was in both number and interest.

The several hundred acres of land required for the planting of the coming Crites Canning factory pea crop, has been secured and as soon as the weather conditions get favorable seeding will begin. Both sweet corn and pumpkin will claim their good acreage share, too.

—Ashville—

Now, this morning at seven o'clock, the earth is blanketed with about two inches of snow, well covering too, trees and shrubery and at this instant snowing hard, apparently coming in from the southeast. And in numbers for the winter, according to what the snow recorder at headquarters tells us, this is number twelve, and to fit in right with that never failing sign, there are six more to come. March being but half through and with all of April ahead, does look as though the sign man really does know his stuff.

—Ashville—

The power shovel man and all, came in from somewhere yesterday to begin scooping out the dirt on the first one of those new dwellings we are to have for the building season 1940, throwing in for good measure, the new municipal building.

PRISON WARDEN TELLS DETAILS OF DARING PLAN

where a classification board meeting was to be in progress.

With a rope made for the purpose, the convicts planned to bind the guards present and seize Henderson, Deputy Warden August Ptak and Chief Clerk Dan Bonzo as hostages.

Prison Chaplains Father John Sullivan and K. E. Wall, Guard Captain J. C. DeLong and Dr. George Keil, prison physician, were to have been bound also.

Pointing a knife at his throat, Benzowski would have ordered Henderson to call L block and direct guards to release Keith, Taylor and Clark.

Then, still holding their hostages, the seven men were to seize a Central Warehouse truck and drive to the L block tower. Standing on top of the truck, they would have tossed a rope over the 32-foot wall, climbed to the top and slid down to the street. Henderson said accomplices in a "black sedan" were to have been waiting on the outside.

Never Had Chance

"They never had a chance," the warden declared.

"In the first place," he continued, "the tower guards are under orders to shoot to kill, regardless of who is held as hostage. Secondly, the L block guards would not have released Keith, Taylor and Clark under any circumstances.

"Besides that, there would have been more prisoners at the classification board meeting than prison officials. That fact in itself probably would have frustrated the plans."

The warden revealed that he had been tipped of the plot two months before it was to have occurred. He said he waited until the "opportune" moment to round up the escape gang.

Although a close vigilance was maintained for several days, prison guards never spotted the accomplices who were supposed to whisk the men away from prison, the warden said.

Benzwoski, Henderson said, had fashioned a crude, four inch knife which was to have been an instrumental factor in the escape.

An eighth man, Joe Filkowski, known in prison as the "phantom of the flat," was questioned but absolved by the warden.

The contest is staged each year at the school that had the winning entry the previous year. The president-secretary of the contest is the superintendent of the school that entered the winning contestant. A loving cup is given to the school whose contestant is declared the winner.

THEFT OF COAL SENDS DERBYITES BEFORE J. P.

In an attempt to smash the series of coal robberies from the Alva Hill Grain Company of Derby, Constable John Stage arrested William Underwood and Emery Rader, both of Derby Wednesday night.

At hearings in the county jail Thursday, B. T. Hedges, justice of the peace, fined Underwood, who pleaded guilty, $200 and costs and sentenced him to 30 days in jail. Underwood will remain at the county jail until the fine and the sentence are served since he defaulted in payment.

Hearing Rader's case, Squire Hedges fined the boy $50 and costs and suspended the fine. Rader was released on promise to pay the costs and on his promise of good behavior.

Alva Hill, proprietor of the grain company, filed the affidavits charging the two with the theft of 150 pounds of coal. He said that coal had been stolen from the yards all winter.

Minister Claims Nation Will Carry On Duties Among Democracies

is not defeated. Finland is still a free democratic country and Finland will continue to fulfill her duties among other free peoples.

"The sacrifices and the suffering of Finland at this moment are heavy. Her needs for food, clothing and medical supplies and for the restoration of her devastated homes are great and urgent.

"The assistance of the American people in meeting these needs has been and still is of vital importance to us."

That U. S. government aid to Finland will be continued was assured by the statement of Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, that the war's end would not affect the $20,000,000 credit given the little country by the export-import bank.

It was understood in Washington that most of the private agencies that have been collecting relief funds for Finland will continue their work.

F. D. 'S Statement

Mr. Roosevelt implied a strong hope that Finland will be able to clear up the debris of war and shape a happy destiny when he said in a statement last night:

"By their unexcelled valor and strong resistance in the face of overwhelming armed forces, (the Finns) have won the moral right to live in everlasting peace and independence in the land they have so bravely defended."

One phrase of the President's statement piqued the curiosity of Washington observers:

"The ending of this (Russo-Finnish) war does not yet clarify the inherent right of small nations to the maintenance of their integrity against attack by superior force."

To some officials it appeared that the President was implying that the Democratic powers must collectively provide safety in an ordered world before such nations as Finland could enjoy their "inherent right" to territorial and political integrity.

A stumbling block to a Roosevelt-Donahey ticket might be the senator's recent announcement he is going to retire from politics at the end of his present senatorial term. He declared he was retiring "after 35 years in official service for a much needed rest and the preservation of my health."

"Could Be Drafted"

Some New Dealers, however, believe Donahey can be drafted along with the President and that if once nominated, he would reconsider his retirement and enter the political wars once more.

There is speculation whether the President and Donahey discussed the 1940 ticket at their Tuesday conference. Belief prevailed the President had called in Donahey to ask him to reconsider his announced retirement. Donahey would not discuss the visit.

23 MEXICANS DIE AS TEXAS TRAIN AND TRUCK HIT

ALAMO, Tex., March 14—At least 23 persons were killed and seventeen were critically injured today when a west-bound Missouri-Pacific passenger train crashed into a truck carrying 49 field workers at a grade crossing near the East Alamo town limits.

Mutilated bodies were strewn along the tracks for a quarter of a mile. Every available ambulance in the area rushed the injured to hospitals at McAllen and Mercedes.

First reports said the laborers, all Mexicans, were from Rio Grande City, and were enroute to an orchard north of Alamo to harvest citrus fruit.

None of the dead or injured was immediately identified.

The truck transporting them burst into flames after the crash and was carried, a flaming torch, along the tracks in front of the locomotive.

Two charred bodies were found on the front of the locomotive.

brother had been killed in the Amritzar riots.

Azad also informed authorities, it was alleged, that he had come to England for the express purpose of killing. He was quoted as saying:

"I put a couple of lovelies in his stomach. He'll be quiet now."

According to authorities, Azad, described as an Indian University graduate, said that he arrived in England several months ago with about $400.

He remained at Southampton, buying a soldier's gun for about $50 and arrived in London only two days ago.

Azad said he had sold his watch a few hours prior to the shooting, explaining:

"I don't need that anymore."

Winter Returns for At Least A Brief Visit

With a blanket of snow covering much of the state and the mercury skidding downward, winter paid a return visit to Ohio today.

Forecasters predicted cloudy and colder weather, with light snow or rain continuing throughout the day. The thermometer was scheduled to dip even further tonight. Tomorrow was to be generally fair, except for snow flurries in northeast portion.

Temperatures hovered around the thirties at 7 a. m., and were gradually receding. Columbus and Cleveland reported 29 degrees, Akron, Toledo and Cincinnati 30, while Dayton recorded 26.

The highway patrol reported driving conditions hazardous, with roads icy under a snow blanket that in some sections reached a depth of three inches. Only the extreme south and southeast portions escaped.

With the promise of spring being given by the rising temperatures every day for the last three weeks, Old Man Winter—and we call him that because he seems to have been around for so long—passed through Circleville again Wednesday night signing the city's book of hospitality with that white, feathery handwriting.

A puzzled look spread over the faces of the citizens of Circleville when they opened sleepy eyes Thursday and learned who their visitor during the night had been. Judging from the dampness of the white ink used, it is apparent that the "guest" doesn't plan to remain here very long.

Snow shovels and brooms that had been put away pending his annual visit next year were hustled out of the basements and the scrape of metal and the swish of broomstraws over cement was heard throughout the town.

The service department's snow plow was back on Court and Main Streets clearing the roads for the day's traffic. The state highway department reported that all the roads were open and that plows were at work to keep them from becoming snowbound.

A balmy spring temperature of 53 dropped to 26 by Thursday morning as the three inches of snow covered the streets. Slush making the streets slippery offered a traffic hazard and sanding operations are under way in the county wherever the highway department feels that the added protection is necessary.

"Well, winter's back again" and "I hope it doesn't last long" were the comments on everyone's tongue Thursday morning. Weather bureau indications of higher temperatures and fair weather for Friday will probably make both statements correct.

She is survived by several cousins. Burial will be in the Darbyville Cemetery by A. J. Hott of Commercial Point.

APRIL 9 BALLOT IN ILLINOIS WINS MUCH ATTENTION

Big For Convention Help By Roosevelt, Garner Major Highlight

STATE TICKET ACTIVE

Rep. Fish And New York Mayor Drop Out; Dewey In G. O. P. Field

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 14—Over the Illinois prairies the mud is flying today.

It's not the mud that from pioneer days mired down the traveler until hard roads came into their own.

It's political mud — thicker, squashier and in larger quantities that has been seen in some years.

Primary day is set for April 9. A plethora of candidates awaits the verdict of the voters.

Entered in the state's preferential primaries are President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner on the Democratic side and Thomas E. Dewey, New York gang busting prosecutor, as the sole Republican entry.

Dewey had opposition in the form of Congressman Hamilton Fish, one-time big time footballer, dynamic Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of the City of New York. Both, however, dropped out of the race before the final day for withdrawals.

The battle for state offices is a wide-open one. This is true in the Republican primary by design, in the Democratic side by accident.

Wide-Open G. O. P. Race

The Republicans agreed not to attempt to select a state ticket. None was selected. Any one that felt like entering the primary did so. Many felt like it.

The Democrats, however, tried slate-making with disastrous results.

The bigwigs of the party assembled. They held meeting after meeting at the executive mansion. Biggest of those present were Gov. Henry Horner, recovering from over a year's illness, and Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago. With the smaller fry their huddles went on.

In the background was the shadow of Lt. Gov. John Stelle. Stelle felt that if Gov. Henry Horner decided not to seek a third term that she should get the gubernatorial bid. He made no bones about his views — in fact he said time and again that he would seek re-election if Gov. Horner tried for a third term but that he would be a candidate for governor if Mr. Horner quit the race.

Official Party Chores

The climaz came with a bang. Calling the State Central Committee together, the conferees announced that Gov. Horner is retiring and that Atty. Harry B. Hershey had been chosen as the party candidate for governor. Stelle remained mum.

After another day of conferences, the remainder of the slatemakers' and the state committee's choices for state posts were announced.

Besides Hershey for governor, the endorsements were:

For U. S. Senator, James M. Slattery of Chicago; for Lieutenant Governor, John Stelle; for State Treasurer, Homer Mat Adams of Champaign; for State Auditor, John C. Martin of Salem; for Secretary of State, Edward J. Hughes of Chicago; for Attorney General, Harold G. Ward of Chicago; and for Congressmen at Large, Louie E. Lewis of Christopher and T. V. Smith of Chicago.

This was to be a "harmony" slate.

Opposition Slate Appears

But the leaders' plans went awry. First, State Auditor E. J. Barrett, who had been purged by the slatemakers, objected to his "liquidation" and announced he would seek re-election.

Things ran on for several days and then Stelle announced his candidacy for the party nomination for goveror. Running with him was Barrett for auditor and young Banjemin S. Adamowski of Chicago, minority leader of the Illinois House of Representatives, as a candidate for U. S. Senator.

The "harmony" slate immediately made counter moves. Louie E. Lewis was shifted from the Congressman-at Large position to that of Lieutenant Governor. Walter Orlikoski of Chicago was named to fill the Congressman-at-Large ticket vacancy.

Hurriedly entered in the Democratic U. S. senatorial contest was Gael Sullivan, youthful aide to Mayor Kelley of Chicago, supposedly to offset Adamowski's entry. Before the deadline, however, Sullivan's name was withdrawn.

Petitions were filed in large numbers and now stand forth as an unusually large field of primary candidates.

For governor there are six Democratic and two Republican candidates; for U. S. Senator, three Democrats and two Republicans; for lieutenant governor two Democrats and seven Republicans; for secretary of state one Democrat and thdee Republicans; for state auditor two Democrats and ten Republicans; for attorney general two Democrats and six Republicans; for state treasurer two Democrats and five Republicans; and for congressman at large (two to be nominated) two Democrats and fourteen Republicans.

CATTLE MARKET STRONG DURING AUCTION SALE

A good market with cattle as the outstanding item was reported by the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association after its sale Wednesday. Cattle prices rose 25 to 40 cents with good quality being sold. Hogs were steady and showed a slight rise in a strong sale. There was practically no lamb market because of the shortage, but those on hand sold strongly. Higher prices were reported on a good calve market. Despite the lamb shortage the volume was large.

publican National Committee. Roosevelt is down on him . . . Axel Wenner Gren, although a friend of Goering's, is quite pro-American. His dark eyed, fascinating wife comes from Kansas City . . . The Wenner Gren yacht, Southern Cross, rescued 376 of the Athenia survivors last September . . . Also it was the home of Greta Garbo during her recent stay in Florida and Bahamian waters. On it Greta ate copiously instead of dieting. Her dietician was trying to get her to put more weight around her shoulders . . . Greta's wardrobe aboard the Southern Cross was so meagre that she wore slacks most of the time, hardly had an evening dress. Friends attributed this to the fact that she never goes shopping—that means being stared at.

QUAKER AMBASSADOR

If and when new ambassadors are exchanged between the United States and Germany — as now seems probable — the man most likely to go to Berlin as U. S. envoy is a Quaker named Clarence Pickett.

Pickett is head of the American Friends Service Committee, a friend of Mrs. Roosevelt's and also close to Myron Taylor, ex-chairman of United States Steel and now American peace negotiator at the Vatican.

Pickett's appointment as Ambassador to Germany is being promoted by these two powerful friends on the ground that the United States needs someone in Berlin who is in touch not merely with Nazi officialdom, but with the German people.

Pickett for many years has helped maintain a Friends' center in both Berlin and Vienna. This dates back to the days immediately after the Armistice, when the Quakers sent relief missions to Austria and Germany, at one time were feeding most of the children in both countries.

Ever since, the Friends' centers in Berlin and Vienna have been given great freedom—even under Hitler.

MINERS' FRIENDS

Pickett now heads all of the Quaker relief work, and has been active not merely in Europe, but particularly among the unemployed in the United States. It was he who initiated the attempt to settle unemployed coal miners at Arthurdale, W. Va., later taken over by Rural Resettlement and now one of Mrs. Roosevelt's pet projects.

Mrs. Roosevelt has given all of her radio income and part of her newspaper income to this and other American Friends Service Committee work. Myron Taylor, when chairman of the U. S. Steel Corporation, also was interested in unemployment among miners and contributed $25,000 annually to Pickett for three years for their relief.

Failure of the United States to keep an ambassador in Berlin was one of the things for which Hitler is reported to have scolded Sumner Welles. Subsequently, Welles worked out a plan whereby Ambassador Dieckhoff, former German Ambassador here, would return to Washington.

AMERICA'S STEP - CHILDREN

Secretary Ickes is having a tough time getting someone to head his Division of Territories Island Possessions. No less than four people have been offered the job since the promotion of Dr. Ernest Gruening to be Governor of Alaska. Everyone of them turned it down.

The first was Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, just after he retired from the Navy and from his spectacular mission as commander of the Asiatic Fleet. Then Ickes offered it to Wayne Taylor, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and now an official of the American Red Cross. Taylor also thought it was too much of a headache.

Wayne Coy, secretary to Paul McNutt, next got an invitation. Coy was with McNutt when he was High Commissioner to the Philippines and was considered well qualified for the post. But he refused. Next Ickes offered the job to George A Malcolm, Attorney General of Puerto Rico. Still no luck.

Meanwhile, the people in these possessions are chafing over the delay in naming an administrator over their affairs.

PIONEER'S LAST REFUGE

LITTLE by little, the idea has been percolating into the heads of unemployed and unsuccessful Americans that such misfortune comes largely from the lack of a "frontier." We are just far enough away in time from the end of our western frontier for the older generation to have forgotten about it and the younger generation never to have known it.

Free land of any value to a settler was nearly all gone before the World War. Attention of easterners and mid-westerners was withdrawn from it by the war and the subsequent industrial boom. Then when the big depression came, homesteading and its associations were but a tradition. The West itself had settled into a fixed pattern, and most of the newcomers who might still drift westward, led by tradition or instinct, were soon disillusioned.

The long drought in the plains completed this disillusionment. Easterners going west ran into sandstorms, and refugees from the wind-eroded lands pushing toward the Pacific were stopped by barriers of prejudice and self-protection.

What now? Some are turning back to the East. And strangely enough, too many of these reversed migrants, old New England becomes a haven. It is surprising, how many deserted farms in Massachusetts, Connecticut and adjoining states are flourishing again. The same phenomenon is said to be appearing in the southeastern states.

Even so, it is impossible to find homes and a living on the land anywhere for all the Americans who want to continue farming. Fewer hands and less soil can produce all the food needed. The place for expansion is, and the opportunities should be, in industry. This is the last refuge of the pioneer.

A BOY'S VIEW OF LIFE

WHEN a sixth grade boy writes a class prophecy he reveals much about contemporary life in his town. Such a forecast, printed in a column of reports from class rooms by pupils, is found in the Fitzgerald, Ga., Herald.

One suspects some little jobs on schoolmates when they are described as "showing off" twenty years hence. Some pals may be flattered a little and others panned. On the whole, however, the list of occupations, from farmer and truck driver through teacher and storekeeper and guard over convicts, seems to suggest pretty much what the sixth-graders' parents and their neighbors are doing.

There is one particularly interesting point. In three of the five marriages the youthful seer anticipates, the wives are helping their husbands "make a living." One of these teaches school while her husband tends cows on a dairy farm. Another does professional sewing to augment the income of a store clerk husband. The third works with her husband in a candy shop.

Class prophets a generation ago didn't take the gainful occupation of wives as a matter of course.

BEHIND RUSSO-FINNISH PEACE MOVE

WASHINGTON—One of the most significant factors behind the Finnish-Russian peace maneuvers is that they were inspired in large part by the invisible hand of the No. 2 Nazi, Field Marshal Hermann Goering.

Acting for him is the most powerful man in Scandinavia, Axel Wenner Gren, who has been a close friend of the German Air Minister ever since Goering married his first wife, the niece of Swedish Baron Rosen. Somewhere in the Finnish-Russian peace picture also (though the State Department denies it) may be Sumner Welles.

Wenner Gren, who controls the Bofors munitions company and is the richest man in Sweden, was on his yacht, the Southern Cross, in the harbor of Nassau a few weeks ago when he received a coded message from Goering. The cable asked him to take the same ship as Welles took on his peace mission.

Wenner Gren flew to New York, boarded the Rex, and when he got to Rome, saw Mussolini before Welles did.

Then he proceeded through Switzerland with Welles to Berlin, where he still is, and where he has been throwing his weight behind an early peace.

BUSINESS AGAINST WAR

Goering's and Wenner Gren's interest in Finnish peace is easy to understand. From the viewpoint of the German army it would be just as disastrous to have Russia sweep through Finland and perhaps on to Sweden, as to have the Allies organize an expeditionary force to stop Russia.

In either case, Sweden's rich iron deposits would fall into the hands of a foreign power.

What the German army wants is a relatively tranquil Russia, from which Germany can draw raw materials. Also, the longer Russia is forced to continue fighting, the more vulnerable she becomes in the south, where are located the rich Batum oil fields, now invaluable to Germany.

Similarly, an Allied expeditionary force sent through Sweden, perhaps turning that country into a battlefield, would ruin the Wenner Gren interests. He is chairman of the Swedish Celullose Company, took over a large part of the Kreuger interests, and heads the Electrolux company, Swedish parent of the American subsidiaries which make vacuum cleaners and refrigerators.

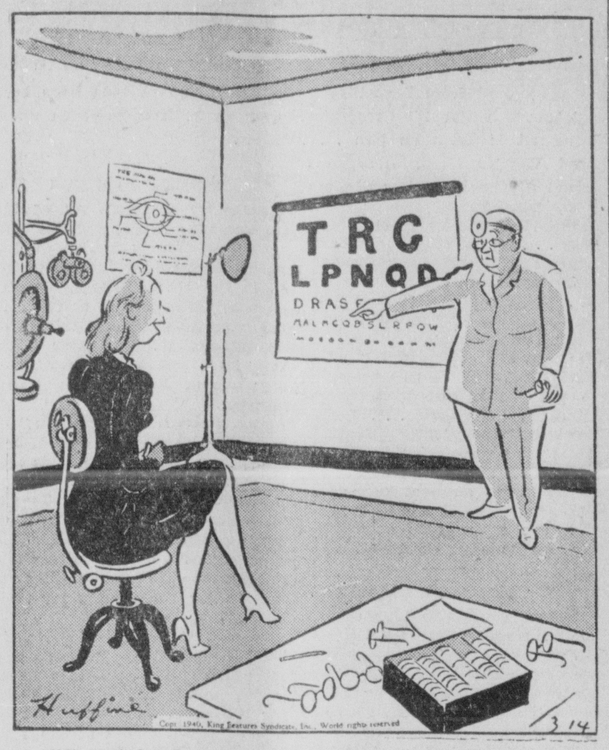

NOTE—The peace activity of Axel Wenner Gren illustrates the attitude of big business in both Wall Street and London's City. Unlike the case on the last war, American bankers are ardent rooters for peace. This time not they but Uncle Sam, through Jesse Jones, is lending the money. Not only is there no dough in war, but if Nazi-Communism wins, the capitalistic system stands in danger.

DIET AND HEALTH

Value of Fruit As First Course

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Is there any scientific basis for the use of fruit as the first course of a meal?

Yes. In the first place, it has been found experimentally that fruits as a pre-meal course reduce the irritating properties of allergents in food and allow people who are sensitive to a large number of foods to get by without any response in the way of hives or asthma. Furthermore, fruits produce preliminary response on the part of the stomach with a rapid concentration of acid and pepsin, which are digestion fluids and used for the digestion of other foods.

It has also been found that fruits reduce the amount of germs in the small and large intestine.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Treating Itching of External Ear

What is the cause and treatment of itching of the external ear?

This common condition is often called seborrheic dermatitis, which is akin to dandruff. It may be due to invasion of the skin with a special variety of streptococcus germs. Discharge from the ear in the later stages, when the discharge is almost dried up, will produce severe itching and inflammation of the ear. Impacted wax will also do the same thing. Treatment in these latter two instances is to attack the cause.

Itching for which we can find no cause is very difficult to treat and may tax the resources of the dermatologist and the ear specialist combined.

What May Cause Denture Troubles

In a patient wearing an artificial denture, there is an inflammation of the palate and lower jaw. Is this due to the denture material used?

There are five causes of these conditions:

1. Residual infection.
2. Spinous-saw tooth.

Both of these conditions may be revealed by competent x-ray.

3. Mucous glands excreting a type of uric acid that literally burns the tissue. This is really similar to diaper rash in babies. Dr. Francis C. Daly, of Boston, has brought out the fact that this condition is a symptom of approaching anemia. A mouth wash of diluted vinegar as a cleansing agent for the denture is recommended as a temporary relief.

4. Filth, in connection with a denture that is not highly polished on its tissue bearing surface. Dentures should be scrubbed with a good household cleanser and a stiff brush. A dentist friend of mine tells me graphically that where one "mote picker" will, through the years, ruin a denture by this type of cleansing, ten thousand tapwater dabblers will continue to be unkissable.

5. Occlusion, the basis of all dental practice. Normally it is the first factor in a discussion of an efficient masticatory mechanism, either natural or artificial.

The material of which the denture is made is of comparatively slight consequence.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Dr. William H. Cowley, Ohio State University's bureau of educational research, spoke at the meeting of Pickaway County's Ohio State Club at the New American Hotel Coffee Shop.

C. D. Valentine, 58, was in a serious condition at his home near Amanda, Fairfield County, after being kicked under the chin by a horse while watering the horses on his farm.

John Riley of Chillicothe, son-in-law of Mrs. Anna Howard, East Main Street, underwent a goitre operation at Grant Hospital, Columbus.

10 YEARS AGO

Dr. Howard Jones addressed the Camillos Club and told the club members of Circleville in its olden days.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ritt, North Court Street, returned after a visit in Gulfport, Miss., where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Teichert, formerly of Circleville.

John L. Courtright was a business visitor in New York City in the interest of the Kippy Kit Factory.

25 YEARS AGO

A book agent reaped a harvest in Circleville selling sets of books containing the President's messages from Washington's time. He sold his book, which he said was a very rare edition, to only a few of the elect, people who could really afford to pay $90 for such a valuable addition to their library.

Dr. Otto Mees, president of Capital University, Columbus, gave an address on "The Man and His Church" at a meeting of the Brotherhood of Trinity Lutheran Church.

Pages From the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up to find the threatened snow growing nearer by the hour. For days the weatherman has been predicting it and, sooner or later, he is bound to be right. Much saddened by the inevitable news that Finland had been forced to make a Red peace. About as much honor in that Russian victory as there would be in me fighting a first grader. Joe Stalin really lost that war, though. He proved to the entire world that Russian might is merely might-have-been. From now on no nation with more than a handful of soldiers will fear that northern bear. Why, the New York police force could train it to jump through hoops.

My heart really goes out to the Finns, peace loving folk who wished only to live their own lives, who were forced into a dreadful war, who fought and bled as patriots, who have lost so much because their land was small and their folk so few. I think most Americans feel the same way.

Driving about the ville was almost struck by a youthful motorist who was trying to be much smarter than his years. I wonder if the supplanting of the old fashioned woodshed by the garage is not having considerable effect on the youth of today?

Talked with a comparative new comer in the ville who already had heard the myth of how the Chamber of Commerce strives to keep industry out of town. Did explain to him that I have missed only three Chamber meetings in four years and that for two years I served on the board of directors and that I know of no single instance of the Chamber discouraging new industry. I do, however, know of instances where manufacturers have offered to move here for $40,000 or $50,000 or more. Investigation showed that those plants moved into their present locations after donations from the communities, and having fulfilled their four or five year contract with the villes, were ready to move again for a consideration. Plants of that kind never are beneficial to any community. They seldom remain long enough for a city to get its donation back. In order to kill the vicious rumor against the Chamber I intend offering at the next meeting a motion that the Chamber offer a cash reward of $1,000 to anyone who provides proof that the Chamber has done anything except encourage legitimate manufacturers in selection of Circleville as a site for their plants. Fooey on such idle talk.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

by RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

I, Bill Strickland, am suspected in the murder of my friend, Alfred Markham, rich young jeweler, at a party in the Rio Vista clubhouse. Jerry Montcalm, another friend, although he is engaged to Muriel Benson, the girl I had once hoped to marry, reveals that he, too, is a possible suspect. He tells Captain of Detectives Clyde McDonald it was he who first stumbled over the body in the moonlit garden at the tip of the river peninsula on which the clubhouse stands.

CHAPTER SIX

"NO ONE HAS accused you of killing him," Captain McDonald told Jerry. The officer's face was grim. "But you haven't helped any by letting us think all this time that it was Mr. St. Clair who found the body. What was the first thing you did?"

"I thought he had just fallen and was hurt. I said, 'What's wrong, Al?' He didn't answer me, so I leaned over and touched him. His coat was all—all—"

"Yes?"

"His coat was all sticky with blood." Jerry's face was white as he looked at the rest of us grouped around the piano.

The captain grunted. "That accounts for the blood stains on your trousers. You wiped your hands off on them."

Jerry looked down, startled. "I—I guess I did. I don't remember."

The captain's cigar rolled back across his mouth again. He gave Jerry a fierce look. "So you were afraid to let anyone know you'd found Mr. Markham murdered? Did you arrange for Mr. St. Clair to find the body a few minutes later?"

Jerry swallowed. "Yes. I—I suggested that he take a walk in the garden."

"By himself? What excuse did you use to get him to go out there?"

"When I came back into the clubroom most everyone was crowded around the piano, singing. He said to me, 'It's stuffy in here, Jerry,' and I said, 'Why don't you take a walk in the fresh air out by the river?'"

"As easy as that, eh? And you didn't pick him in particular? You didn't care who found the body, as long as it was not you? You wanted to keep out of the case?"

"That's right. And I watched him from the glass doors so I could testify for him later that he wasn't the murderer."

"All right. That will do. With the exception of you two, and Mr. Strickland, who was upstairs, you were all grouped around the piano as you are now." He turned to me. I was standing at one side. "Mr. Strickland, you were in the garden with Mr. Markham shortly before he died?"

"I was." I tried to keep my voice steady, but failed. Everyone was watching me.

"I understand you were quarreling. About what?"

"It didn't seem very important," I explained. "He wanted to be left alone."

"He raised his voice?"

"He did. He told me to go back into the clubhouse."

"What did you do?"

"Naturally, I went. Jerry Montcalm has told you how he met me at the door, and I went upstairs. He saw Al—standing in the rose arbor."

"I'm not asking you to testify for Mr. Montcalm. Were you a good friend of Mr. Markham's?"

"Very."

A chill gripped my heart. I didn't like the way he looked at me.

"Know any reason anyone might want to kill him?"

"I can't think of any possible reason. I'm sure there was no reason."

The captain's eyebrows shot up. "That would be remarkable, wouldn't it? A murder without reason? How about jealousy? Could he have been planning to meet some young lady in the garden—someone, perhaps, in whom someone else was interested?"

"Al didn't care for women."

"A remarkable young man," said the captain sarcastically. "Well, since you, his best friend, can see no motive we'll have to look further into the psysical evidence. He was stabbed to death with a knife. Do you know of any possible weapon?"

"Not a knife with a blade long enough to kill him."

"How do you know it was a long blade?"

"I—I just assumed so."

"Assumptions are dangerous. As a matter of fact, Mr. Strickland, a well-aimed blow from a pocketknife would have killed him. I hope you find your knife, Mr. Strickland."

A chill gripped my heart. I didn't like the way he looked at me.

Captain McDonald now turned to Muriel, who was seated on the piano stool. "Do you remember what you were playing on the piano, Miss Benson?"

"Yes, it was—"

"Never mind. I'm no musician. I want you to play exactly as you did tonight, starting from the moment Jerry Montcalm came in the door the first time after seeing Mr. Strickland go up the stairs. I want each one of you to do exactly what you did while that music was playing. I want Mr. Strickland to go upstairs. I want Jerry Montcalm to stumble over the 'body' and induce Mr. St. Clair to take a walk in the garden. If all the stories you have told me are true, when the music stops you should be back from the garden, Mr. St. Clair, and at the same moment you, Mr. Strickland, should be at the top of the stairs. No singing, of course," he told those at the piano.

"Are you ready? Miss Benson, begin—very softly, so that neither the ones in the garden nor the one upstairs can time their actions by the music. Perhaps we had better close the doors."

I stepped uneasily into the hall. The coroner, who was coming in through the glass doors, asked me, "What goes on?"

"We are re-enacting the fatal ten minutes for Captain McDonald."

Coroner Silver smiled. "Old-fashioned."

I went upstairs, but I had no intention of following instructions. I knew that I must recover my pocketknife!

It must be lying in the garden, close to the spot where Al had died. Of course there mightn't be blood on it, but I couldn't explain to the officiers how it came to be there—not until the mystery of Al's behavior was cleared up. And suppose blood had fallen on it?

If the knife were found by one of the investigators . . . !

I had about ten minutes before I must return downstairs. The proper moment for my return could be determined by watching St.Clair. In the meantime I must find some way to get down into the garden, and back again.

Today's Garden-Graph

Planting Asparagus Crowns

When purchasing asparagus for planting purposes, select strong two-year-old crowns. Mary Washington is an excellent variety and gus, named Paradise, is also a rust-resistant variety and is a heavy producer. Do not permit the crowns to dry out before planting, for if they do they are almost certain to die.

As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the planting bed should be two inches higher in the center than on the sides, in order that the crowns, when planted, will be well above the roots. The long, thong-like roots should be spread out when planted, as illustrated. The crows should be set some six inches below the surface soil. Cover the crowns with only two to three inches of soil at first; fill up the trench with soil as the plant's shoots grow upwards. This gradual filling in of the trench with soil is done to keep the roots of the asparagus from being smothered before the plant is well established.

The plants should be set from twelve to eighteen inches apart along the row. The rows should be three feet apart. Stalks should not be cut from the plant during the first year, and only a few from it during the second year. Full harvesting can begin the third year after planting.

GIL MICKELSON NAMED TO HEAD STATE CAGERS

COLUMBUS, March 14 — Gil Mickelson, who started this season as a substitute forward and ended as the squad's leading scorer with 101 points, today stood elected captain of the 1941 Ohio State University basketball team. He hails from Thief River Falls, Minn.

Mickelson, 21 years old, six feet tall and weighing 165 pounds, declared "we'll prove by our actions on the floor that we have what it takes" in his speech of acceptance.

Others awarded letters were Bob Lynch, this year's leader, John Schick, Bill Sattler, Jack Dawson, Jack Graf, Bill Goss, Jack McLain, and Jed Mees.

LOUIS, GALENTO MAY BATTLE FOR G. O. P. LEADERS

PHILADELPHIA, March 14—A championship heavyweight fight between Joe Louis and Tony Galento during the Republican national convention sessions in Philadelphia was envisioned today in wake of reports that the Brown Bomber has been guaranteed $100,000 for such a meeting.

A group of wealthy Philadelphians, who remained anonymous, was said to have offered to back the fight with the guarantee and to have proposed June 24, opening date of the convention, as the time for the set-to.

Louis, who defeated Galento in a rousing battle in New York last year, made his first and only appearance in Philadelphia several years ago when he knocked out Al Ettore, Philadelphia heavyweight.

FENSKE TO PARTICIPATE IN ARMOUR TECH RELAYS

CHICAGO, March 14 — Shooting for a new world's record indoor record in the three-quarter mile, Chuck Fenske of Wisconsin will run in the featured race of the 12th annual Armour Tech relays here Saturday afternoon, it was announced today.

The present record for the three-quarter mile distance, 3 minutes, 3.4 seconds, was set by Lloyd Hahn in New York in 1925. Pacers for Fenske in the Saturday race have not yet been announced.

GRISSOM DOES WELL IN NEW YORK LIVERY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 14—The New York Yankees today were looking to Lee Grissom, the Cincinnati cast-off, for some additional strength on the hurling line during the coming season as a result of his work in yesterday's exhibition game in which the world champs defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers 5 to 2. Grissom pitched the middle three innings and held the Dodgers runless and to two singles.

MIKE McCORMICK HITS

TAMPA, Fla., March 14 — The Cincinnati Reds added another layer of pink to the red faces of dopesters who pick the St. Louis nine to run them ragged in the coming season. Paced by Rookie Mike McCormick's two doubles and a triple, the Reds defeated the Cards, 7 to 1, for the second straight day.

TALABER VS. KNUTSON

COLUMBUS, March 14 — Frankie Talaber, Chicago, former light-heavy belt wearer, tonight will attempt to lift the junior-heavyweight wrestling mantle from the shoulders of Gil Knutsen, of Windson, Canada. They will go one fall, with a 90-minute time limit.

STATE'S CAGERS BEGIN TOURNEY ON TWO COURTS

Bellefontaine, Massillon Vie At Fairgrounds; Willshire And Marysville Tangle

COLUMBUS, March 14—Primed for strenuous action, 32 Ohio high school basketball teams seeking the Class A and Class B state titles were to open hostilities today.

Promptly at 1 p. m., officials were to issue the "open fire" order in the Fairgrounds Coliseum and the Ohio State University gymnasium. The inaugural Class A fracas pitted Bellefontaine against Massillon. The initial B tilt featured Willshire and Marysville.

Saturday night, two quintets will have slid down to the end of the basketball rainbow. The final communique will list two title hoders to fill the pennant niches vacated by Akron North and North Canton, eliminated in district fighting.

Unsettled weather in some portions of the state made it appear as if there may be a decided slump in anticipated attendance. But this fact failed to lessen the enthusiasm displayed by competitors.

Youngsters Ready

The youthful contestants, in excellent condition following vigorous combat for the past three months, were eager and impatient for battle.

The Class A favorites, New Philadelphia, Canton McKinley and Cincinnati Woodward were confident. As was Smithfield, top choice in the Class B flag chase.

Firse round pairings: Class A—Bellefontaine vs. Massillon; Defiance vs. Akron Buchtel; Martins Ferry vs. Canton McKinley; Marietta vs. Findlay; Cincinnati Woodward vs. Canton Lehman; Toledo Waite vs. Dayton Fairview; Columbus Central vs. Akron South; Bellevue vs. New Philadelphia.

Class B—Willshire vs. Marysville; New Carlisle vs. Waynesburg; Smithfield vs. Germantown; Bluffton vs. Midvale; Glenford vs. Rittman; Amanda vs. Sandusky St. Marys; Canfield vs. Hanover; Holgate vs. Kitts Hill.

Very few fives availed themselves of the opportunity to arrive in Columbus early and engage in a practice session. For instance, yesterday afternoon only Smithfield, Class B favorite, Hanover and Canfield were seen on the Class B. floor in Ohio State's gymnasium.

Regardless of the outcome of the tournament; regardless of who wins and wears the A and B crowns, the most prevalent though was—this state cage tourney, with all its coolr and trappings, has rightfully earned the name of "Ohio's greatest sports classic."

ALL-STAR BALL GAME TO AID FINNS WILL GO ON

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 14—The all-star baseball game for Finnish relief at Tampa Sunday will be played on schedule, despite the Russo-Finnish peace, Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis assurer today.

"There is still need for relief among Finnish non-combatants, and I see no reason to cancel the game," Judge Landis said.

LEONARD AIDS PAYCHEK

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., March 14—Under the tutelage of Benny Loenard, young Johnny Paychek of Des Moines, Ia., was in training here today for his heavyweight title fight with Joe Louis March 29. Paychek will hold public boxing sessions Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

WARNER RITES TO BE CONDUCTED SATURDAY; THREE OTHERS INJURED

COUNTY NATIVE KILLED AS CAR AND TRUCK HIT

Highway Near Warsaw, Ind. Scene Of Wednesday Tragedy

While funeral arrangements were being completed Thursday for Mrs. Dora A. Warner, 56, wife of Lawrence Warner, 490 East Main Street, three other persons injured in the wreck that was fatal to Mrs. Warner remained in the Warsaw, Ind., hospital for treatment of injuries. They were Mrs. Florence Leist and her son, Earl W., of Washington Township, and the Rev. J. Paul Jones, 48, pastor of the Columbus Miller Avenue Evangelical Church.

The Rev. Mr. Jones is suffering from head injuries and a broken arm. Earl Leist, advices from Warsaw said, has an eye injury, and his mother is painfully bruised.

The wreck happened Wednesday when the party of four was returning to Circleville after a trip to Naperville, Illinois. Earl Leist had gone there to enroll in the Evangelical Theological Seminary, planning to enter next September. Mrs. Warner had stopped in Naperville with a sister, Mrs. Ida Compton.

Car Skids Into Truck

The tragedy happened, Indiana reports said, when the Leist car skidded into a truck on an ice-covered highway.

Mrs. Warner was born in Washington Township May 5, 1883, a daughter of Eli A. and Leah Hitchcock Leist. She married Lawrence Warner in Stoutsville October 20, 1904, and is survived by her husband; two sons Melvin and Oakley and a daughter, Mrs. Leola Storts; two brothers, Albert C. of Cedar Hill and Ottis R. of Pickaway Township; three sisters, Mrs. Ida Compton of Naperville, Mrs. Emma Fetherolf of Stoutsville and Miss Rose Leist of Stoutsville.

She was a member of the St. Paul Evangelical Church, Washington Township and an active worker in the Pickaway County W.C.T.U. organization.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p. m. in the St. Paul Church, burial to be in Forest Cemetery, Circleville, by M. S. Rinehart. Friends may view the body at the Warner home after 6 p. m. Thursday.

Boar Causes Excitement For Citizens And Police

If anyone was fit to be hog-tied today it was the boar that was raising havoc out on North Court Street at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Everyone up at that end of town was going about his daily business when the boar hog burst on the scene. No one knew where he came from, but there he was really leading everyone that saw him a merry chase. He wasn't a greased pig, but his captors can testify that he was plenty slippery.

C. C. Strawser, Robert Brehmer and William Green chased him out of one yard into another. He tore up shrubbery and anything that could be torn up as he romped across the lawns with his captors in hot pursuit.

Panting but undaunted the men chased him up the driveway at 712 North Court Street. That was when the 300 oounder made the first mistake. Maybe he planned to fight to the finish with his back against a wall, but Strawser thought just a little faster. As the boar dashed into the garage behind the home of Dr. Robert Hedges, Strawser followed him in.

As the boar feinted a lunge at Strawser, he stepped out of the garage and locked the doors. And that was that. At least that was what Strawser thought.

After resting for about a half hour, the hog leaned that 300 pounds against the garage door and snapped the latch. Then he was off on the loose again tearing up the lawns.

Such disregard for law and order brought the police into the game of "catch if catch can." Armed with bludgeons and clubs, the police went calling on the rampaging rascal. Up and down North Court Street the chase was renewed.

At 3:30 p. m. the boar threw up the sponge and the police claimed a technical knockout. He was taken to the stock pens down near the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks where he was reported resting quietly Thursday.

The police made a check, but no one claims the prodigal pig, so if no one comes to take home the bacon he will be sold.

"He sure was a mean one," Strawser said. "Frothing at the mouth, shaking his head, sneering at us. But the police caught up with him and that's that."

A program of retrenchment and replanting is under way at the north end now that hostilities have ceased.
